No school referenda for Antioch

MARY FOLEY

Staff Reporter

Opponents, proponents, and school administrators will be taking the election period off in Antioch school districts. None of the Antioch area school districts will have a referendum on the ballot this November.

At a special school board meeting at Antioch's Consolidated School District 34, board members decided to delay the proposed classroom space solution referendum until at least March of next year.

"We may be looking at a March referendum," said Superintendent Dan Burke.

While a November bid was under consideration, the board decided to delay any action until they could do a more in-depth examination of the several plans under consideration. A committee of four board members has been formed to

Tragedy puts resident in financial straits

On a dark, foggy morning Michael Cashmore's life changed forever. As a result of an automobile accident, Cashmore, 24, lost his sight in both eyes.

"We were on an unfamiliar road and the driver didn't see the stop sign," said Cashmore, who is an Antioch resident. "The driver slammed on the brakes and the car went over the embankment."

All four people in the car were not wearing seat belts in the Aug. 18 accident.

"The rear passenger flew forward pushing the left top of my head through the window," said Cashmore. Cashmore was taken to St. Therese Hospital by Antioch Rescue Squad.

"I had CAT scans, hundreds of stitches, and five hours of surgery," Cashmore continued. "They were amazed I remained conscious."

Cashmore lived to tell the tale, but he was left blind. He said there is no hope of restoring his sight. "Not until there is enough technology to transplant whole eyes," he said.

The driver of the car did not have insurance. Furthermore, Cashmore, who worked for RBS Construction in Lake Villa, did not have health insurance through work. "No insurance, no benefits, no hope of anything," he explained.

While things look dismal for Cashmore, he retains his spirit nonetheless. "I've made contact with the Lions Club," said Cashmore. "They have volunteered money for a dog and rent."

Cashmore is also seeking Social Security to help pay some of the bills while he begins to find a new life for himself. "Hopefully, I can go back to school and find a job working on computers," he said.

Cashmore has two children to support, Michael who will be 4 years old in October, and Anthony, who celebrates his first birthday on Saturday.

Cashmore is also learning what wonderful friends he has. Tina Andrews, a friend, has been burning the telephone wires in an

Village talks new vehicle maintenance building

MARY FOLEY

Staff Reporter

The Antioch Village Board has given approval to go out for bids for a proposed new fire department maintenance building. Officials are hoping, if the plan is a go, to have the structure roofed before the winter snows begin.

The new building would be constructed on Holbeck and Orchard, near the existing fire station. The plan is to provide a larger area to allow for the maintenance of fire trucks as well as a storage area for the department. However, all village vehicle maintenance may ultimately be done from the building.

"I think eventually, we would do all the maintenance there," said Village Administrator Tim Wells.

The ultimate cost for the building is not known, but officials are hoping the price tag will be between $160,000 and $180,000. "The only way to find out how much it will cost is to put it out to bid," said Trustee Wayne Foresta.

The village already owns the property, which is commonly referred to as the Horton property. The building would be located near the home of Floyd Horton and his wife, who has something similar to a life estate arrangement with the village.

One small concern of the village trustees is that the bay doors to the proposed building would open up into the rescue squad parking lot. However, Wells did not think the issue would be a problem.

The maintenance facility would be staffed by existing public works employees. "We have qualified folks to do the maintenance of the vehicles," said Wells.

Besides maintenance, the building will also be used as a storage facility. The fire department boat could be stored there during the winter, as well as some of the lesser used fire engines.

The 60- by 90-foot building will have repair bays, an office, as well as storage space. Bids for the facility could be opened as early as the week of Sept. 25. The completed proposal should be in front of the board at the Oct. 2 meeting.

Antioch Library plans programs

On Sept. 18, the Antioch Public Library District begins a preschool reading program and school age activity hour. The program runs through Dec. 9.

Tons of activities are planned for youngsters age three through 10. Movies will be shown once a month on Saturdays at 2 p.m. Registration for the program closes on Sept. 15 or until classes are filled. Registration must be done in person.

Students build storage sheds

Let Antioch Community High School carpentry students build you a storage shed on your own property. The program will extend during the first semester of the school year.

Two shed sizes are available. All sheds have gambrel roofs, treated wood floors and will be put together at your site by students.

The 10- by 12-foot model costs $1,000 and the 10- by 16-foot model costs $1,100. Both have door openings of 70 inches.

For more information or to order a shed call 395-1421 and ask for Mr. Kasuboski.

Higher fees would fund water projects

The Fox Waterway Agency board will be holding a public hearing in September and October to discuss augmenting future budgets by increasing the user fee schedule, which will allow the Agency to complete more water quality and improvement projects.

Since the onset of the Agency there has been no increase in the user fee stickers. During the past 10 years the cost of living has increased 43 percent.

"We are now fortunate to have the permits, staff and equipment to address the water quality needs in the waterway. The monies will be put to good use," indicated Chairman Dam.

The current costs for the Agency user fee sticker range from $10 to $50, with the average sticker costing a boater $30. This sticker allows for boating from the Wisconsin state line to the Algonquin Dam, through the 14 Chain O'Lakes and Fox River.

Dancers from Kim Kalla's Studio of Dance in Lake Villa brought home several awards from the Starpower Dance Championships held in Kansas City, Mo.

Kim Kalla Dancers perform in Missouri

Members of Kim Kalla's Studio of Dance in Lake Villa captured several awards at the Starpower National Dance Championships held in Kansas City, Mo. The group, which consists of over 40 students ages 6 through 18 years old, competed in ballet, jazz, lyrical, tap and tumbling routines over the four day event. Starpower hosted dance squads from several states, including Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Texas, Kansas and Missouri.

To be eligible to compete for the national finals, all entrants must qualify at a regional preliminary competition. At finals, contestants not only compete in different styles of dance by age group, they also compete for a coveted spot in the "Battle of the Stars" competition which showcases the overall high score winners of each category.

This year, Kalla's Dance Magic team had two acts competing in the "Battle." One number performed by the "Aerialites" was a tumbling routine to a Gloria Estefan song, "Turn the Beat Around," which featured several difficult tricks including hand-springs, backflips and aerial cartwheels.

The other "Battle" entry was called Jungle Jam and featured all of the Dance Magic members in custom-made jungle attire, complete with monkey keys.

Kalla's Dance Magic team is supported by the Dance Magic Booster Club, a non-profit organization that puts on several fund-raisers throughout the year to help defray the costs of competition fees and other expenses. Sponsorship opportunities are available by corporations or private individuals. The Dance Magic Team is also available for local performances. Interested parties may contact Dance Magic Booster Club President Barb Ruhl at Kim Kalla's Studio of Dance, 356-8999.

Kim Kalla's Studio of Dance has been teaching dance and tumbling in Lake Villa for 22 years. Classes are available in ballet, jazz, tap, pointe, lyrical and tumbling from ages 3 through adult. Private lessons are also available. Classes begin after Labor Day. For more information call the studio at 356-8999.

Picnicker drowns in Ingleside

TINA L. SWIECH

Staff Reporter

A Chicago man spending the Labor Day weekend in Ingleside was pulled out of a man-made lake by divers after he drowned. On Sept. 4, around 5 p.m., Fox Lake rescue received a call about a missing man feared to have drowned while swimming at the Holiday Park on Rte. 134.

William Davis, 37, of 4329 N. McVicker, Chicago, was pronounced dead by the Lake County Coroner after Fox Lake Fire Department divers located the body which was in about eight feet of water.

According to officials, Davis went out swimming while his family picnicked on the park grounds. Signs posted and buoys in the water warning of dangerous levels were apparently ignored by the swimmer, said divers. The deepest point of the lake is about 15 feet.

Fox Lake Fire Captain Ken Buchardt said it took him and other divers about a half-hour to locate Davis who had been in the water for approximately one hour and 45 minutes.

Eyewitness reports state Davis had taken some medication belonging to someone else, and he was also drinking, said the Lake County Coroner.

The Coroner's office will be performing an autopsy on Davis.

Captain Buchardt said this was the first time this season Fox Lake divers had to go down in the water. About six years ago, there was another drowning at the same lake, said Buchardt.

Other fire departments that assisted in the dive were Round Lake, Wauconda, Lake Villa, and Antioch. The Spring Grove fire department assisted with an ambulance and Grayslake helped out with a fire engine in charge of the Fox Lake quarters while they were out on the drowning call.

Crisis Line training classes to begin

CONNECTION's Fall "Power of Listening" training classes will be held Sept. 21 through Oct. 5 at Condell Day Center in Libertyville. The two-week course consists of three Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 10 p.m. and two Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The sessions will be conducted by professional family counselor Curt Wennerdahl, MSW, MDiv who uses experienced Crisis Line telephone workers as group instruction leaders. While it is designed primarily to prepare volunteers to work on CONNECTION's 24-Hour Hot Lines, the course is of value to almost everyone since its most important component is teaching people how to listen effectively.

During the class, students do a great deal of roll playing to accustom themselves to using the skills they are acquiring. Students learn to use their personal strengths to assist people in crisis. They also receive information about such subjects family dynamics, chemical dependency, mental illness, stress, and abuse.

The course is offered only three times a year. The next sessions will not begin until January of 1996. Minimum age for Crisis Line workers is 18. The only cost is a $15 fee for materials. Upon completing the course students receive a certificate. Three hours of college credit at either the graduate or undergraduate level can be arranged. For further information, or to register for the classes beginning Sept. 21 call the CONNECTION office weekdays at 362-3381.

Choir singing acappella at St. Peter's Church – not by choice

The St. Peter's Choir is gearing up for another nine months of la-la-la-ing at the 9:30 a.m. masses. Unfortunately, we have one major part of our ensemble missing—our organ bench sits empty. Anybody out there who might be interested in sharing your skills with us, please, please, oh please give us a holler. We practice on Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. and we sing at the 9:30 a.m. mass on Sundays. (You will be home in time for those Bears games.)

We only sing from September until May, so you even get the summers off. The pay isn't much but the fringe benefits will pave your road to heaven. We do a wide variety of music: the alto's and soprano's like upbeat light rock, even though most of them are of the big band era, while the tenors and basses are more partial to '50s and '60s. But for the most part, the music is churchy and God-related. Father Hanley, our pastor, is pretty open-minded about our music. He did however draw the line when our director prepared a "stroll" accompanied by "shoobee-doo-wah's," from the choir for his entrance into mass one Sunday. He didn't think the church or parishioners were quite up for that kind of a modern opening to morning mass. So if you think you would like to be part of this angelic team, call our choir director, Jeanine at (414) 728-4750 or leave a message with Betty at the church rectory at 395-0274. Take a break

Let's face it folks, in today's hi-tech age where tomorrow's computer is already obsolete, most relationships don't last as long as a football season. In this fast-paced, climb-the-corporate-ladder society we live in, how many people ever settle down long enough to pay off a car let along an entire mortgage? Everyone's time is spread so thin among so many different projects and activities, do we really do justice to any of them? Is it any wonder with all our every day pressures and stresses that when we hit those unstable periods in our most cherished relationships we tend to release a lot of pent-up frustration and misdirect our anger.

We are all so caught up in our extra-curricular life we have a tendency to forget the really important things like clean underwear and manners. Millions of dollars are spent on "How-To" books, if only people would use a good old-fashion dose of common sense—situations that arise may resolve themselves before committed love and precious memories are lost.

Nowadays people judge their success by how booked up their calendar is. They should be concentrating on more relaxed activities like reading to a child or eating a big Sunday dinner in the dining room even though it is not a holiday. Our society dictates a fast-paced lifestyle; why not slow down and let our kids learn to play like kids and let us all be less materialistic and more content. It doesn't take a great sum of money to find contentment with ourselves and our loved ones, though it does take a great deal of energy and it's not always easy.

Recently an acquaintance, who was not yet 30 years old, died and left behind a grief-stricken wife and three children under the age of 5. Now you tell me who cares what kind of car his widow is driving or how big the house is that she and those fatherless children are rattling around in? It's times like these that you look at the relationships you are involved in and think: "None of us are perfect, we all have idiosyncrasies to bear, but there must have been something going on there once upon a time to have gotten us this far."

Let's concentrate on those strengths that has kept the blood pumping all these years. Faults very rarely go away, you just have to adapt, adjust and accept them, and move on down that yellow brick road. Remember, with time, even the hardest things to grasp will gradually come within your circle of comprehending—although you might never fully agree with them. It sometimes takes an occasion like the death of a young husband and father for one to reflect and reevaluate their own life and conclude that although the grass may be greener on the other side of the fence, be grateful you have grass at all.

Library programs

Okay kids, get your parents over to the library this week because registration for the Fall Library Program is in full swing and will continue on until Sept. 15. There will be a program during the week for 3 and 4 year olds and a program for 5 year olds, and a Saturday program for kids in grades first through fourth.

Class sizes are limited so it is on a first come, first serve basis. So if you don't want to miss all the fun activities and parties the great bunch of Librarians have planned for you, you had better get over there before you miss the first week, which will begin on Sept. 18.

Singing canary

For any of you who thought perhaps I was a bit harsh on "Sylvia From The City" in my piece on her driving, I'll have you know she called and personally commemorated me on a job well done. She said she laughed her gluteus maximus off and congratulated me on my accurate reporting of her tale. She informed me, however, that I failed to mention the actual number of four letter words that were flying from her lips that day. I gently reminded her that this was a family-oriented publication. She said she was involved in another incident in which she was forced to abscond with some lady's shopping cart at a local grocery store, but she wasn't too forthright with any of the gooey details.

I guess I'll just have to wait for some singing canary to leave me a message on my machine with all the particulars on that can of worms. I enjoyed our brief chat Sylvia, and now that you have my number, just keep in mind what singing canary was so quick to relay your tale of woe to me and remember turn-about is fair play!

Still no agreement for baseball fields

ALEC JUNGE

Staff Reporter

Lake Villa trustees met in closed session to discuss a proposed baseball agreement with the Lake County Forest Preserve at the Sun Lake Forest Preserve.

Mayor Frank Loffredo said the board had asked the Forest Preserve to submit the issues it feels is important to allow the baseball fields. He said the trustees have yet to make a decision on what will be done.

"It has been difficult to negotiate this so we asked them to submit a proposal," Loffredo said.

Most of the committee session was in closed session where the proposal was discussed. Loffredo didn't elaborate on the details, but said the board is considering how it will respond to the Forest Preserve.

"We were able to discuss some options," Loffredo said.

The board has been negotiating on behalf of the Lake Villa Township Baseball League. The league has about 700 youth from the township, as well as Antioch and Grant townships who play on the teams.

For two years, the league and the village have attempted to secure an agreement with the Forest Preserve to lease 14 acres of the land which is currently used as a farm.

In the original agreement which ceded the Sun Lake Forest Preserve, it was stipulated that ball fields would be allowed on the site.

If the league can get a long-term lease for the fields, it desires to have at least three fields with dugouts, lights, stands and a concession area.

The land is located west of Deep Lake Road, east of Rte. 45 and just south of Grass Lake Road.

The board is evaluating the response which will be given to the Forest Preserve.

Lady linksters gain first win over Regina

The Antioch High girls linksters opened play in the tough inter-suburban golf conference with a first-ever win over Regina Dominican.

Antioch nipped Regina by a 208-210 score.

To make the week even more productive, the Sequoits twice bested the school low-score record for regular season dual meets.

After celebrating the conference win over Regina, Antioch dropped a non-conference match to Carmel (208-190), and then fired a 207 to crush Wheeling (207-253) in a match held at Chevy Chase Country Club.

Antioch Coach Steve Wapon was especially pleased with the early-season performances.

"I like the early-season competition for positions this year. We have no less than eight golfers battling to play on varsity," Wapon said. "The junior varsity golfers are also progressing very nicely and show real promise in the future."

In the varsity matches with Regina Dominican and Carmel, the Lady Sequoits received sound performances from Sarah Rockow (51), Sarah Murphy (52), Kelly Periman (52), Lisa Murphy (53), Jessica Shore (58), and Marissa Blasko (67).

Junior varsity scores included Angie Pederson (53), Krista Workman (62), Jenny Barbera (964), Kristen Hungand (71), Jamie Hope (72), Abigail Clark (74), Jackie Anderson (88) and Carrie Noonan (90).

At Wheeling, Antioch scoring was led by medalist Periman (50), followed by Shore (52), Rockow (52), Sarah Murphy (53), Pederson (56) and Lisa Murphy (60).

This week's tournament's competition will be highlighted by Saturday's 11-team Barrington Invitational.

Elephant owner, fest coordinator arrested

TINA L. SWIECH

Staff Reporter

Two arrests were made Tuesday evening in Fox Lake over a 48-year-old female named "Lydia"—who happens to be a 9-foot tall 9,100 pound elephant.

Police Chief Jim Busch left the village board meeting abruptly with another officer to check on two subjects after being notified that they were in custody of an elephant. The owner of the elephant, David Robert Tesch of Ft. Meade, Fla. was cited with creating a public nuisance, harboring a dangerous animal, and having the animal in Fox Lake without a proper license such as a circus permit, according to the chief.

This isn't the first time Tesch was arrested. Last month he was taken into custody in North Chicago for violating two city ordinances with his elephant.

Fox Lake resident Gregory A. Harutunian was charged with not acquiring the proper municipal licenses for such an animal.

Last Thursday, Harutunian called the Fox Lake Press to promote the "festival" he was going to run this week at his place of employment, Dip Stick Fast Oil Change on Rte. 12.

The "Fall Harvest Golden Jubilee Back-to-School Plantation Day or Something" was to be a promotional event for the business. Other planned events included a giant Valvoline Oil display, appearance by the Valvoline Oil man, a blues band, a dance show, psychic readings, a moonwalk ride for kids, a florist display and sale, videos offered at a reduced rate from a village business, and food from U Hot Dog Choo Choo. Rides on Lydia the Elephant were to highlight the event, Tuesday through Saturday.

On Tuesday, Harutunian who wanted to be known as the "fest organizer" told the Fox Lake Press he was no longer employed by Dip Stick and was moving his event to Jerry's Parkway Foods on 75 S. Rte. 12.

The owner of Jerry's, Jerry Ming approved having the fest in his parking lot, and added he wished he had more time to prepare for it. After finding out about the arrests, Ming was reportedly upset about the incident.

According to police, Harutunian told Tesch and others involved that he had checked with the proper authorities and got the green light to proceed with the festival. Apparently he didn't, they said.

Trustee Jim Segin, owner of U Hot Dog Choo Choo, became defensive when the Fox Lake Press called him to comment about his involvement with the event.

The trustee cooled off however and explained he was willing to participate in a "promotional" event for Dip Stick, but then began to question Harutunian once he found the festival coordinator had been fired, and suddenly wanted to move the event to another location. Segin said he didn't discover until Tuesday afternoon that elephant rides were going to place.

Harutunian claims this isn't true. "He (Segin) knew about it a week and a half in advance," said Harutunian. "Segin knew about it all along," he added. The trustee gave Harutunian his home phone number to call him about the event, and Segin was even willing to help set up the promotion, said Harutunian, and now "I'm the one holding the bag."

According to Harutunian, the trustee told him, "This would be great for business." Harutunian said he then asked Segin what if anything needed to be done to allow for the festival and elephant, including permits. Segin said he, Harutunian and Mayor Ken Hamsher would sit down and discuss the event, but it was never set up, explained Harutunian.

Harutunian said Segin kept putting him aside, and then citing a personal crisis with his ailing mother, backed out from assisting with the event.

Segin claims he went to Mayor Ken Hamsher early Tuesday evening upon hearing about the elephant rides. The two then checked the village ordinance book. Afterwards, they consulted with the village attorney, and the mayor and several trustees took a ride out to the site where Lydia was chained inside a large semi-trailer. After seeing the elephant first hand, Segin and the others went to Police Chief Busch.

The trustee explained he often participates in promotions with village businesses, and holds Dip Stick in high regard, but "I had nothing to do with a festival or anything else," maintained Segin.

After Tesch and Harutunian posted bond Tuesday evening, Chief Busch ordered the elephant owner to take his animal and leave town within a half hour. The chief later said the man did get out of the village.

Carmen Tesch, the elephant's co-owner said she was surprised at the trouble her husband suddenly got into. "Greg (Harutunian) said everything was okay. We checked with him last week," said Carmen.

Carmen said Lydia is often involved in various promotions and in 1992 the elephant was voted at the Illinois State Fair as the animal which President George Bush was to ride on because she's so gentle. Bush however never got the chance, as he had to cancel out due to a disaster in another part of the United States during that time, she said.

attempt to get help for Cashmore. She is in the process of opening up an account for the Cashmore family at the State Bank of the Lakes in Antioch. She is hoping residents will pitch in and help this struggling family out.

Besides friends and family, Cashmore has nothing but compliments for the treatment he received at St. Therese. "They were great," he said. "I did not have one bad experience there. During and after my stay there they did everything they could to keep my spirits up. They literally, and afterwards, saved my life."

Anyone interested in helping this family out is encouraged to call the State Bank of the Lakes at 395-2700 and ask for the trust department. The family is in great need of money until Social Security benefits can be obtained.

evaluate the proposals and make a recommendation to the full board.

"As much as we all know we need to go to a referendum, we need to wrestle this down to a single plan," said Board Member Mike Perrone.

Other board members agreed. "We need to be ready," said Board Member Bud Newton. "Not only have we not rallied behind one single plan, we are not ready."

All of the plans consider building additions as opposed to a new building. And, no matter what plan the board ultimately selects, a new roof will have to be added to total. At this time, the board is looking at six different plans which would add space to Oakland, W.C. Petty, and the Upper Grade School.

"We need to re-roof the upper grade," said Burke. "Any referendum will have to include that."

Grass Lake School, Emmons, and Antioch Community High School will not be seeking a referendum this November as well. Emmons School recently went through the referendum process and has completed the needed building addition at the single school district.

Ending domestic violence goal of A Safe Place efforts

STEVE PETERSON

Staff Reporter

The goal of A Safe Place, according to Phyllis DeMott, director, is to "put ourselves out of a job."

The agency counsels women who have experienced abuse and helps thousands annually from their Waukegan office.

"Our goal is to eliminate violence," DeMott said.

In addition to helping victims of domestic violence, A Safe Place also handles other crisis referrals.

The shelter in Waukegan has a capacity of 30 persons. "It is always full and we have a waiting list. If a woman is in danger, we can refer her to Catholic Charities for a hotel stay for their safety. Their safety is our No. 1 concern," DeMott said.

Victims of domestic violence often find they are isolated and shunned after a "make-up period. It becomes a normal situation," DeMott told Gurnee Rotary Club members.

A Safe Place helps 130 - 140 women a month, 1,650 in the past year.

"Awareness is an important element of domestic violence," she said. "We got calls from women after the O.J. Simpson trial started who said, 'I don't want to end up like Nicole Brown Simpson.'

Domestic violence court is now a separate court from other misdemeanors and there is a place at the Lake County Circuit Court where those who are about to give testimony may wait. A Safe Place also works closely with the Lake County State's Attorney's office.

"There are five to 10 domestic violence cases a day. It is real frightening to testify," DeMott stated.

"We will be concentrating our effort on prevention education in schools at elementary and high schools. There is an intergenerational cycle. Children learn how to resolve conflict with violence from their role models," DeMott said.

Violence can have a profound affect on children, Rotarians learned. Many children feel responsible.

"Two children were in a room and two mothers came in, both strangers and were arguing. The children saw that and then began to argue," DeMott said.

Treatment for the batterers is something A Safe Place believes in. Batterers come from all classes of people.

She praised the community groups for their support. Rotarians donated items to be used in the library.

'Awareness is an important element of domestic violence.'

Police continue search for shooting motive

Round Lake Beach man surrenders after three days

ALEC JUNGE

Staff Reporter

Police, family members and neighbors are continuing their search for a motive in the attempted murder of a Round Lake Beach woman by her husband.

Gary Reedy, 35, surrendered to the Lake County Sheriff's Department three days after allegedly shooting his wife three times and taking his 7-year-old daughter on the run with him.

Reedy has been charged with attempted murder and aggravated battery with a firearm according to the state's attorney's office and is being held in the Lake County Jail on a $500,000 bond. Reedy and his wife reportedly had a domestic dispute which escalated into violence. There had been no previously reported incidents of domestic violence between the couple.

Reedy reportedly shot his wife, Kay, also 35, with a .357 magnum gun. The shooting took place at around 3 a.m. on Sept. 3 at their home at 1504 Round Lake Drive. Police indicated this action took people who knew him by surprise.

"All his neighbors said the same thing, he was a nice man and it was out of character for him to do something like this," said Police Chief Ed Sindles.

"He was a gentle man who just snapped," said neighbor Greg Benyak.

Sindles said Reedy left in the family van and went to Car Quest, an automobile parts store in Fox Lake, where he worked. He then allegedly forced open the cash register and took off with a Ford Fairmont with a Car Quest emblem.

Benyak was asked by the family to clean up and was cleaning the house when Reedy reportedly made a phone call to the home on Sunday afternoon from Kentucky. Reedy asked him if his wife was still alive.

"He asked me what he should do. I told him to turn himself in," Benyak said.

Reedy reportedly told Benyak he couldn't get on a plane because they had a pet cat and the airline wouldn't allow the cat on the plane. According to Benyak, Reedy said he was planning to take his daughter to Disney World before he would be sent to jail.

Benyak gave the phone to Cpl.

Debbie Rundle who also told him to give up to police.

Reedy apparently rented a white car, but police aren't sure where the car was rented.

Reedy drove the child back to the Budgetel in Gurnee where he stayed the night on Sunday night. He made a phone call to relatives who picked up the daughter, according to Sindles.

Sindles said he was unsure where the phone call came from.

Reedy turned himself into Lake County Sheriff's Department on Sept. 6.

Kay Reedy, a former Navy officer, is recovering from the three bullet wounds in a Milwaukee hospital. She is expected to be released in a week to 10 days, according to Sindles.

Her parents came up from East St. Louis to take custody of the girl and a 15-year-old son.

Rte. 53 extension could concrete over Ziegler's Orchard

JENNIFER WHISENAND

Staff Reporter

It's been on the books for more than 20 years, but residents of Lake and McHenry counties are still learning of the proposed extension of Route 53.

"I have not been notified about anything," said Helga Ziegler, owner of Ziegler Orchards, Grayslake.

The proposed extension of Route 53 would run from Lake-Cook Road to Route 120 then split going east and west along Route 120, going right through Ziegler's home and orchard.

"Right now I am very angry," Ziegler said. "I have spoken to my neighbors and they do not know anything about the tollway coming through this area," she added.

Ziegler stated that one neighbor she spoke to said the Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) came out to their land and measured the property, but told them there was nothing to worry about they were just there to measure the land.

"I found out that this west leg of the proposed Route 53 began in 1990. Here it is today in 1995 and I am just finding out about the leg coming through this area," Ziegler said. "Why hasn't anyone contacted me about this issue?" she asked.

The Illinois State Toll Highway Authority Project Coordinator Morgan Cotten said the property owners would not be officially notified until the alignment had been approved.

"There will be a lot of things that are going to be happening before they decide on the preferred alignment," Cotten said. "One is the flood designation for the Squaw Creek area. We think that the existing flood area on the maps are incorrect and they might be smaller, which would change the alignment," he added.

Cotten stated that it takes a long time to do a study and they would not know anything until late summer of next year.

Living day by day the Zieglers are getting ready for the busiest time of year for them, apple time on the Ziegler Orchard.

Soon Bacon Street will be bumper to bumper car, vans and trucks waiting to get into the orchard on the weekends.

"When it is apple time we have people parked out on the street and walking in to pick apples," Ziegler said. "This orchard is a family opportunity that we should not let go of," she added.

See ORCHARD page B6

During 22 years of hard work the Zieglers planted apple trees and landscaped their property to make their home an enjoyable place to live along with having an apple orchard business. Now they have heard through the grapevine that a leg of the proposed extension of Route 53 could run through the center of their land.—Photo by Jennifer Whisenand

AT A GLANCE

Chicago man dies in park lake

INGLESIDE—A Chicago man spending the Labor Day weekend in Ingleside was pulled out of a man-made lake by divers after he drowned, making this the first drowning this year in the Chain O' Lakes area.

On Sept. 4 around 5 p.m. Fox Lake rescue received a call about a missing man feared to have drowned while swimming at the Holiday Park on Rte. 134. William Davis, 37, of 4329 N. McVicker, Chicago, was pronounced dead by Lake County Coroners after Fox Lake Fire Department divers assisted by others located the body which was in about eight feet of water. Eyewitness reports state Davis had taken some medication belonging to someone else, and he was also drinking, said the Lake County Coroner. Other fire departments that assisted in the dive were Round Lake, Wauconda, Lake Villa, and Antioch. The Spring Grove fire department assisted with an ambulance and Grayslake helped out by manning the Fox Lake quarters while they were out on the drowning call.

Kickers prepare for parade

WAUCONDA—Hundreds of soccer kickers will be out and about in Wauconda in celebration of the start of soccer season in Wauconda Township. The Wauconda Township Soccer Association is kicking off its 1995-1996 season with a parade the morning of Sept. 9 featuring all 400 players, the Wauconda Fire and Police Departments and a member of the new Chicago Stingers professional soccer team as Grand Marshall. The parade will start at Wauconda High School at 9 a.m., traveling south on Main Street, then west on Lewis Avenue and south on Osage Street to Wauconda Middle School for a rally. This will be the 19th consecutive year the Township has offered soccer to area youths ages 4 through 14. The league started in 1976 with approximately 50 players.

Church holds first pig roast

Lake Zurich—Many churches in Lake County are opening their doors and welcoming all to enjoy a pig roast. St. Peter United Church of Christ of Lake Zurich is joining that trend. "We have noticed a lot of churches are doing it," said the Rev. Stephen Redman. To their credit, they have added extra goodies and amenities to make it a real down to earth "hoe down" on Sept. 10. Roasted pig and corn will be cooked and served from 3 to 7 p.m. behind the church, 47 Church St., with country and western line dancing held in the parking lot. Fun for all ages will be provided, including children's games, a clown, face painting, music provided by the Prairie Schooners, square dancing, and plenty of raffle items.

Enrollment exceeds estimates

VERNON HILLS—With more than 393 first-graders walking through the school doors at Hawthorn Primary School, last-minute enrollments made it necessary for school officials to add yet another first-grade section. Earlier this summer, the board of education added a 16th section to prepare for rising enrollment. A week before school started, a 17th section was added. There were 15 sections last year. Rising enrollments also made it necessary to add another kindergarten. The rising school population has alerted school officials to housing needs. In the upcoming months, committees will be formed to investigate short-term and long-term housing needs. A referendum for building expansion may become necessary within the next two years, officials said.

Gurnee 56 adopts budget

GURNEE—Gurnee District 56 Board of Education members adopted a budget which calls for a $12.2 million spending plan for fiscal year 1995-96. Revenues are $300,000 more than last year. "We think our equalized assessed valuation will go up more than 2 percent. This is a conservative estimate," Tom Long, business manager, said.

More than 30 crafters at Faire

ANTIOCH—The Antioch Arts and Crafts Faire, which begins on Sept. 9, will be host to more than 30 crafters. A special bonus, a farmers market, has been added to the roster. Artisans and crafters from around the country will set up shop in Antioch from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sept. 9 and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sept. 10. Hand-made items as well as food, beverages, fresh produce, and fun will be on the menu for the event. In addition to the crafters, businesses in Antioch will also be showcased during the event. The event is sponsored by the Antioch Chamber of Commerce.

Boards changing significantly

GRAYSLAKE—Both Grayslake school districts will see a considerable change of command this November. Neither school board president, Don Steffen and John Harnegle, will vie for their respective positions. Grayslake School District 46, which includes three elementary schools along with the Middle School, has three seats open with two incumbents challenging four newcomers. Grayslake High School District 127 has four seats open with three new candidates challenging one incumbent. The school board presidents will be appointed by board vote after the Nov. 7 election.

Firemen plan celebration

WADSWORTH—Newport Fire Department personnel are keeping their fingers crossed for good weather for the Sept. 9 anniversary event. The day will begin at 9 a.m. with an apparatus demonstration in the parking lot at St. Patrick's Church off Wadsworth Road. Activities continue at the church with a Memorial Mass said at 10 a.m. Line-up for the 50th anniversary parade begins at noon at Yorkhouse and Cashmore Roads. The parade steps off at 1 p.m. The route is: west on Wadsworth Road to the area west of the railroad tracks and east of the Des Plaines River. Many activities take place at the station during the afternoon hours, 2 to 5 p.m. Apparatus display, children's games and contests, clowns, fire safety characters, raffles and door prizes, the fire safety house, free blood pressure checks, a horseshoe pitching tournament, anniversary t-shirts, and more. At 2:30 p.m. a dedication of a new fire engine will take place.

Arbitrator rules in strike

ROUND LAKE—A federal arbitrator reached a decision on the 15 remaining issues from Round Lake staff school strike. The arbitrator ruled in favor of the board and only authorized raises of three, four and five percent in the next three years for both teachers and teacher assistants. The strike took eight weeks and it was eight months before the arbitrator made the ruling. The board won most of the issues including denying holiday pay, association leave day and association president pay. The union won the issue of secretary pay and counselor pay. If summer school is added, it is under the same contract language.

Football highlights Navy Day

NORTH CHICAGO—Everyone is invited to the 1995 North Chicago Navy Day celebration, a 30-year tradition featuring the first annual Blue-Jacket Football Classic on Saturday, Sept. 9. The Navy Day parade will be held from noon to 12:30 p.m. The North Chicago Punt, Pass and Kick Competition, co-sponsored by Foss Park Dist. and the Great Lakes Morale Welfare and Recreation Command. Competition will take place before the junior varsity game and at that game's half-time. Winners will be announced at the varsity game. The first annual Blue-Jacket Classic, featuring North Chicago Community High School and Lake Forest High School, starts at 1 p.m., with halftime entertainment by the RTC Band and drill team. Tickets cost $3 for adults, $2 for children. This year, for the first time, Navy Day will be an all-North Chicago event, co-sponsored by the City of North Chicago, the Lake County Council of the Navy League, the North Chicago Chamber of Commerce and the North Chicago Community Unit School Dist. 187.

CLC Citizens Police Academy allows students to hit streets

KEVIN HANRAHAN

Staff Reporter

Want to know what it is like being a cop without having to become a cop?

Officer Rich Schur of the Vernon Hills Police Department is offering a "Citizens Police Academy" class at the College of Lake County in Grayslake.

The 10-week course will offer insights on the duties of police officers through a series of guest speakers from Lake County police departments as well as representatives from the state's attorney's office and the drug enforcement office in Waukegan.

"This is a chance for people to get to know what it is like to be a cop," said Schur, who is also the assistant coordinator of the Criminal Justice Institute at CLC.

He said other possible guest speakers may include members from a SWAT Team and a four-legged visit from a K-9 officer, better known as a police dog.

The class is designed after a similar program which has flourished in Vernon Hills. There is a waiting list to enroll in the "Citizens Police Academy" there.

In addition, the course will offer students the opportunity to "ride-a-long" with police in a police squad in a neighboring community, Schur said.

"It's all meant to let them know who we are and what we do in a non-confrontational manner," Schur said. "In reality, people will realize that 90 percent of our work is service oriented."

The class will meet on Thursdays from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., beginning Sept. 14. Cost is $106. The only restrictions are that students have to be 21 years old and sign a liability waiver form. Interested students can register up until Sept. 14.

Liquor control committee to meet

The Lake County Liquor Control Commission will meet on Monday, Sept. 11 at 9 a.m. in the County Building, 18 N. County St. in Waukegan. For this meeting reasonable accommodation will be made for disabled persons. This includes accommodation for the vision and hearing impaired if a request is made within 48 hours of the meeting time.

Holiday roadblock a success

Illinois State Troopers, McHenry County Sheriff's deputies and Johnsburg police team up over the Labor Day weekend for a roadside check on Rte. 31 Saturday evening in Johnsburg. The detail project went well, according to State Police Master Sgt. Bill Dial. Major violations drivers were cited for were no insurance and not using seatbelts. A total of 20 arrests and 17 warnings were issued. There were also two DUI's. Before the roadblock check, officers were briefed on the event. VIEWPOINTBrush with death reveals loopholes*BILL SCHROEDER

A closer look at the case involving a drinking driver whose van rammed the car of a young woman, leaving her trapped in the wreckage in the path of an oncoming freight train, reveals some shocking inadequacies in our justice system.

Amy Metaxa, 21, survived the brush with death. With the rear of her car crushed against her body, Amy was able to inch her vehicle off the tracks on the power of her starter motor. The driver's side door was wedged shut by the impact so Amy crawled to safety through the broken window on the passenger side.

As the young college student was collecting her senses on the siding of a rainy Wisconsin Central crossing in Antioch, the freight barrelled through. Amy wasn't able to comprehend her close call until being treated at St. Therese Hospital.

The van driver, William "Bill" Bischoff, 33, knew exactly what happened and he also knew what the consequences might be when it was discovered that he had been drinking. Bischoff realized he was in a serious predicament. For his own reasons, he fled the scene, leaving his unknown victim to fend for herself. Bischoff hurriedly parked the van at his home nearby.

The self employed house cleaner and painter didn't know at the time that Antioch police would be able to trace him quickly. The impact had left the license plate on the van imbedded in Amy's car. For some inexplicable reason, Bischoff called 911 to report "an accident."

When Antioch officers arrived, Bischoff told them an unidentified female companion was driving, a woman he met at Wisconsin bar during a night of drinking. During questioning, Bischoff said he had hoped to have sex with her.

Officers immediately became suspicious and took Bischoff to the police station. They locked him up when he became unruly.

They took evidence from his clothing of airbag residue that later was confirmed in a crime lab.

After being cited by Antioch police for leaving the scene of an accident and driving too fast to avoid an accident, Bischoff was released. Additional misdemeanor charges were filed against him by the state's attorney office, one for criminal damage to property after he tore up a cell blanket and two counts of disorderly conduct.

At this point of the case, the record becomes tangled and confusing. Bischoff's case came up in Misdemeanor Court in Waukegan before Associate Judge Barbara Gilleran-Johnson. The van driver entered a negotiated plea of guilty on the property damage information. The two disorderly charges were dropped. Bischoff was sentenced to one year's supervision, 30 hours of public service and fined $100. The case was continued to Dec. 7, 1995 for a status hearing scheduled before Associate Judge Vickie Martin.

Asst. State's Atty. Greg Nikitas, who was acting on behalf of the prosecution, told this column that criminal damage charge is a Class A misdemeanor punishable up to a $1,000 fine and one year in jail. The punishment is identical to both traffic charges, which also are Class A misdemeanor in the eyes of the law.

The case before Judge Gilleran-Johnson was handled as a routine misdemeanor, one of 8,000 misdemeanor cases going through the Lake County judicial system every year.

Pending the absence of a victim's impact statement, the court had no way of knowing any extenuating circumstances, particularly that Bischoff was a drinking driver. This is the first major discrepancy in the hit-and-run case. Both Amy and her husband, a corrections officer in the Lake County Jail, confirmed that the impact statement was mailed immediately to the state's attorney's office.

Discrepancy No. 2 is what was the dispensation of the two traffic charges filed by Antioch police? Since Antioch has its own prosecutor, the state's attorney's office reported that the traffic counts would be handled by the Antioch prosecutor.

The questions about the missing victim's statement and how the traffic charges disappeared remain to be answered.

While we continue to seek those answers, Bischoff has resumed his life as has Amy, who now is working as a client service representative for a Mundelein manufacturing concern.

So far Bischoff has had to pay $39 in court costs. That's not much for wiggling out of a situation where a young woman's life was put in mortal danger by a driver who had been drinking.

This story isn't closed. There will be more about it later.

EDITORIALLakeland
Newspapers*Waterway agency makes its mark

The Fox Waterway Agency stands as a monument to the belief that government works best when contained and administered at the local level. Saturday, Sept. 9, evidence of this belief will be celebrated with a reception at agency headquarters on Pistakee Lake.

An open house from 3 to 6 p.m. will mark the 10th anniversary of the agency, born out of the failure of other governmental machinery to protect the natural wonder of the Chain O' Lakes and the Fox River from the ravages of flooding, pollution and unbridled boating growth that was resulting in death and injury.

For all intensive purposes, the State of Illinois gave up on trying to save the Chain and Fox waterway and turned over the task to residents of Lake and McHenry counties residing in the vicinity of the 64,000 acre Chain and the meandering river. In effect, the state said, "Here, you fix it."

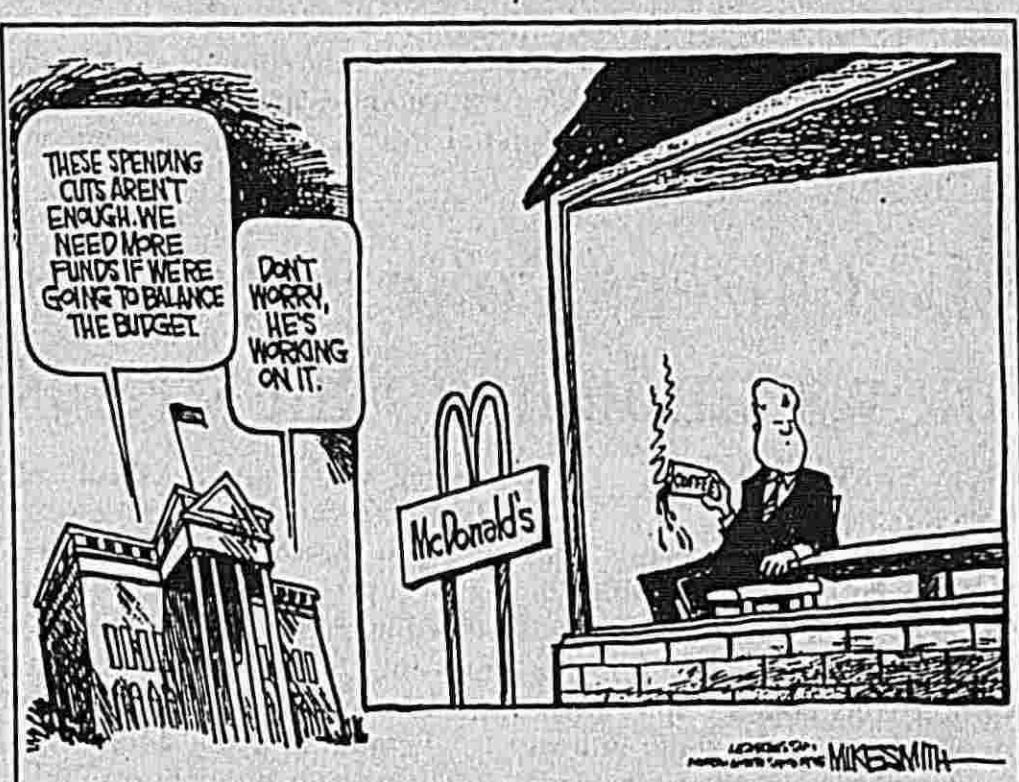

Through pioneer legislation shepherded through the General Assembly by former State Sen. Jack Schaffer, the agency was created with the major caveat being that it would not have any taxing power. Enabling legislation provided for local election of trustees and limited powers to enhance water quality, protect shorelines and promote safety. Legislators also imposed an unusual 10-year "sunset" provision if the agency proved to be ineffective.

Original commissioners headed by the late John Soffietti met with hostility from the boating public and a dubious reception from marina owners. Self-funding through a system of user permit fees, motor fuel tax income and grants provided a revenue stream for the important task of dredging silt-clogged channels. Dredging plans became mired in an ocean of red tape that was not cleared away until Dr. William Dam became chairman two years ago.

Today the unusual bi-county organization stands as a functioning, well run, focused public body that is supported by a strong base of volunteer advisers, a boating public that understands agency goals and aims, and marina owners who appreciate that the agency is a life-line for water-related business and commerce. Voters approved extension of the agency in a successful referendum last year.

As it embarks on its second decade, the Fox Waterway Agency is here to stay. Congratulations for succeeding where the entire state governmental apparatus came up short.

Injured gull typifies waterfowl rehaber involvement*NAOMI MITCHELL

Correspondent

As a rehaber (rehabilitator) of waterfowl (ducks, geese, swans, herons) with USFW and DNR (formerly DOC) permits, I try to refer frustrated citizens to someone capable of helping them. Often the creature is not in my line.

A federal permit qualifies me to take care of migratory birds.

What is a rehaber? He/she is an ordinary person taking the time to care for wild animals or birds. Each of us has a specialty, just as veterinarians work with small animals such as cats and dogs, or large ones like horses.

We are not paid by the state or federal government, although we are required to obtain permits from either one or both—sometimes grateful people will give us a donation, but that in no way covers money spent on food; time caring for the wildlife; time filling out reports (state/federal); pens and cages; gas and car expenses, should it be absolutely necessary to retrieve an animal that an inexperienced person couldn't handle, such as a heron; returning phone calls; being available to receive animals; consoling people; explaining how to care for something you cannot take due to lack of room; or whatever.

Most rehabers have a paying job and cannot give full-time to rehabing.

The rehabing season is generally spring (animals born) through fall (animals migrate or hibernate). For me it is all year long due to my setup and the type of critters I care for.

I don't get the same reprieve as other rehabers. What this amounts to, is I must hire someone to do chores such as washing windows, cleaning gutters, putting in a retaining wall, etc. The expense is great for me.

This year rehabers became overloaded early in the season due to all the development. Creatures have been chased from their homes and into places where they can be hurt or killed. We are just as frustrated about what to do when we can't handle any more and no one can help us.

Some rehabers do their own veterinary work. I don't. Until this year, I worked with a vet. He'd do the simple medical work or put it down (put to sleep). And I'd take the mended waterfowl and care for it until it could go back to the wild. Vets do not have the space to hold wildlife for extended periods. A vet is in business to make money, and my vet had to answer to the owner of his clinic.

Rehabing is exhilarating, frustrating and sometimes heartbreaking—as it was recently. I tried to help a family with a seagull via phone. At noon, I left the basement to get my two dogs something to eat. On my doorstep lay the dead seagull. This family had to travel a good distance to place it there.

After I got over the initial hurt (I've heard of this happening before), I decided it was time to tell my story.

Editor's note: Besides caring for injured creatures, Naomi Mitchell is active in citizen watchdog groups, including the Impact Coalition of West Lake County. A retired school teacher, she resides in Wooster Lake.

PARTY LINES

Landscape sewing seeds to unseat veteran Porter

Party Lines, the Lakeland Newspapers column of political commentary, is prepared from staff reports.

Bob Byrne, political advisor and campaign strategist, has signed on to help Richard Rinaolo defeat veteran Congressman John Porter for the Republican nomination in the 10th Dist. next spring.

Rinaolo, operator of a North Shore landscaping business, says he will conduct an uncomplicated, straightforward campaign contrasting his own conservative views with what he characterizes Porter's drift toward liberalism which is at odds with mainstream Republicanism.

Byrne, former president of the North Chicago Chamber of Commerce, pointed out that the 10th Dist.'s western precincts in Libertyville and Vernon Twp. are strongly conservative.

The campaign aide also stated that Rinaolo's ideas that line up well with House Speaker Newt Gingrich also will play well in the more moderate shoreline communities where GOP voters tend to be conservative on fiscal matters but liberal on social issues.

Rinaolo, who taught at the University of Chicago before going into business, says 10th Dist. voters didn't like Porter's votes against gun control, flag desecration, the balanced budget amendment and tax reduction. "Porter isn't representing the district with those votes," declared Rinaolo, a resident of Lake Forest.

Campaign plus—State Rep. Tom Lachner (R-Lake Bluff) has turned jokes about his youthful appearance to a campaign advantage by staging a "Still 39" fund-raiser Sunday afternoon Sept. 17 at North Croft Park, Lake Forest. Price of family admission for food and fun is—you guessed it—$39. If you come alone, a $25 ticket will be needed. Call 295-9549 for additional information.

All day long—For serious Republicans in Antioch Twp., it will be politics all day long Saturday, Sept. 16. In the morning they'll be turning out for the annual Lake County Republican Federation's 33rd annual meeting. In the evening, chairman Lillian Golonka will have them line dancing and whooping it up at a country round-up at Antioch VFW.

The cocktail-dinner combo is designed to replenish township coffers. Golonka is taking reservations at $20 per person at 395-1892.

Dunn running—Associate Circuit Judge Wallace Dunn of Deerfield announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for full judgeship in the March 19th primary election. Judge Dunn was appointed to the bench in 1986. Since that time, he has been on special assignment to the full Circuit Judges and is currently presiding in the family division. Dunn was in private practice for more than 20 years before his appointment to the bench. While in private practice, he was city attorney and prosecutor for many communities. He also served on the Lake County Zoning Board of Appeals.

• • •

No target—State Rep. Lauren Beth Gash (D-Highland Park) expressed confidence that her independence and a strong showing last time out will keep her out of Republican gunsights in the 1996 general election.

"I support Republican positions sometimes, so they know I can cooperate," Gash declared. More importantly was Gash's lop-sided victory in 1994, exceeding landslide figures by a couple of points. That boils down to GOP prospects of spending a lot of money to defeat Gash and still losing.

"I don't think they want to do that," Gash observed.

Land values—Former Libertyville Twp. Supervisor Mike Graham says newspaper (not this one) speculation about the value of the Graham family farm in Warren Twp. is "wildly optimistic."

Nowhere near the $90,000 to $100,000 per acre figure written about the 29-acre parcel standing in the path of development. "More like $35,000. And that's market value," retorted Mike, whose hobby these days is calculating what subdivisions cost taxpayers to subsidize development. Taxpayers always are big losers after homes are built, according to Graham.

• • •

Kustra kuming—Don't look for State Rep. Al Salvi (R-Wauconda) to demand equal time now that Bob Kustra is lined up as speaker for the big Republican shindig Saturday, Sept. 16. Salvi already has been informed that Kustra was invited in his capacity as lieutenant governor, not as a candidate for a U.S. Senate nomination, which Salvi also seeks.

Republicans are chuckling that their breakfast meeting at the Princess on S. Milwaukee Ave., Libertyville, is free while Democrats meeting at the same time at Raphael's on N. Milwaukee carries a $20-per-head admission charge.

• • •

Kermit waiting—Serious about running for the county board from Cuba Twp. (Barrington) is Highway Com. Kermit Smitty: He's waiting along with others to see what incumbent Rep. Mark Beaubien does about the Salvi seat in the Illinois General Assembly.

Third Lake battles—Mayor Karen McCluskey hopes to move forward with village business despite what could be considered politically motivated actions by trustees.

"The other four trustees supported my opponent," McCluskey said.

The four—Dennis Murphy, Larry Matson, Cheryl Duhig and Robert Ruwitz—voted not to allow a mayor's column in the village newsletter and to disconnect a telephone line for the mayor's use. Trustees Margaret Stojk and Grace Vogt opposed both measures.

"There is so much negative energy spent on this kind of thing," McCluskey said.

McCluskey, challenged by former Trustee Bev Remington, won 63 percent of the vote.

McCluskey said she does not mind not being allowed to write a mayor's message, but said the phone issue interferes with the running of the village. Predecessors had a village line at their homes, she said.

Stay tuned.

Collision course—Two Lake County women may be on a collision course for appointment to the new non-elected University of Illinois board of trustees. Both are good Republicans and have the value of incumbency.

Sue Gravenhorst of Lake Forest has been elected twice to the U of I board when voters had the say-so before Springfield enacted higher education reform. Nancy Masterson of Barrington currently is a member of the Board of Regents for higher education. Masterson could make things easier for Gov. Edgar by opting for a leadership spot connected with Northern Illinois University.

Interestingly, both Gravenhorst and Masterson have downstate roots. Gravenhorst hails from Effingham and Masterson is from Peoria. By coincidence, both are involved in family owned businesses.

• • •

Not safe—Republican insiders consider the seat of State Rep. Andrea Moore (R-Libertyville) a battleground as long as political activist Jack Martin has a checkbook and a well oiled computer. Martin is a long-standing Moore foe and is believed to be on the prowl for someone to take on Moore in the Moore spring primary. As a freshman, Moore is establishing a creditable record with a reputation for hard work and team play.

• • •

Staying home—Lake County Board Member Edward Fojtik (R-Fox Lake) disputed rumors that he was planning to run for state representative, if Rep. Al Salvi (R-Wauconda) runs for a Senate seat. "I'm happy in the county," Fojtik said. "That's where I'm gonna be." He explained he doesn't know where the gossip was started, and said he's heard from several people who've asked if he was really running as state rep. Fojtik is up for county board re-election in the March primary in 1996. He's been on the county board since 1992.

Editor:

Let's stamp out those idiotic letters that are sent anonymously, without any return address, sometimes referred to as chain letters.

The letter begins with something like, "This paper has been sent to you for good luck." It goes on to claim, "You will receive good luck within four days of receiving said letter"—if you send off 20 copies to 20 friends who can use some good luck.

Think for a moment! This is an anonymous letter with no return address. How, then, does the sender or anyone else know that Joe Elliott received $40,000 then lost it because he broke the chain? Who did George Wasson contact about losing his wife after eight days of receiving said letter that he neglected to circulate? What R.A.S. officer received $470,000? How could the chain sender know anything?

Some do believe a letter of this type brings good luck. Does the originator of such trash give any consideration to the pain and consternation a letter of this type COULD cause some people? How about homebound citizens (many seniors) who may receive such a missile and, needing help, want to believe it? They are fearful that if they don't send out 20 letters something dire may happen. Because of this fear, it is more likely that something just might go wrong. Fear alone has been known to make folks ill. After all, the letter did state that a Daleen Fairchild did not believe in the letter, threw it away and died! This is love?

Letters such as these are no better than any other type of psychological warfare. There is not much the post office can do about it, but they are working on a solution. You can help. Don't encourage this form of illness. If you get one of these "lucky" letters, destroy it or turn it in to your local postmaster.

Hillary, stay home

Editor:

At the heart of the upcoming United Nation's World Conference on Women is a 147-page document, loaded with radical views and proposals; from enormous hostility toward the family to finding marriage as the root of all evil for women. The family is blamed for most of the violence suffered by women and girls. Everything related to traditional male and female relationships is despised. Unsurprisingly, the document was written by a virtual who's who of radical feminists.

Of great significance to feminist organizers is "gender feminism," redefines human sexuality. Sexual identification, according to their proposal, is something society imposes on children and then expects them to play out in their behavior. If children are protected from social and religious conditioning, people will be free to move into and out of existing genders and gender roles into eight newly proposed genders, according to one's preferences.

Along with radical feminists, the Lesbian Caucus played a prominent role during meetings of the "preparation committee" at the United Nations. The Gay and Lesbian Human Rights Commission also have issued a declaration demanding "the right to raise children regardless of sexual orientation."

This assault on traditional values originated with Bill and Hillary Clinton, who adopted and promoted the feminist and homosexual agendas from the third day of their administration. The president forced the military to accept homosexuals and lesbians; appointed radical people such as Jocelyn Elders to key government positions, permitted abortion in military hospitals and authorized fetal tissue experimentation.

As our country becomes increasingly conservative, the conference in China may represent the twilight of an outrageous idea that has run its course at home. If we can just keep the ultra-liberal like Hillary Clinton from exporting their failed policies around the world, there may yet be light at the end of the tunnel.

Orchard

People come as a family to the orchard and pick apples, then go home with tons of apples, Ziegler stated.

"Once the families pick all the apples they wonder what they are going to do with all the apples and they begin to bake as a family," Ziegler said.

The Ziegler's moved onto their property 22 years ago. Over the 22 years they have planted numerous apple trees on approximately 17 acres.

Not only have the Ziegler's added to their orchard, but are in the process of renovating their home and adding on to their home.

"We are now waiting in limbo, what is the point in fixing up our home if they are going to condemn it," Ziegler said. "We have put so much into this property and our home and now I find out it could be taken away from us," she added.

The Ziegler's orchard is not the only orchard that will be affected by the extension. The extension will also have an impact on the Quig's Orchard in Mundelein.

"These people need to realize that we are real people, we exist and we are living here," said Ziegler. "I count, and my vote counts," she added.

The Ziegler property and nearly all the properties in the area are on there own well water system, and Ziegler believes if Route 53 comes through their area the wells would be contaminated by many pollutants from the road.

"The current road systems are not ready for a tollway to come through this area," said Ziegler. "They should not be promoting a new tollroad until the current roads are upgraded," she added.

Ziegler stated that IDOT and ISTHA might even find out they do not need to build a tollroad if the existing roads were up to par.

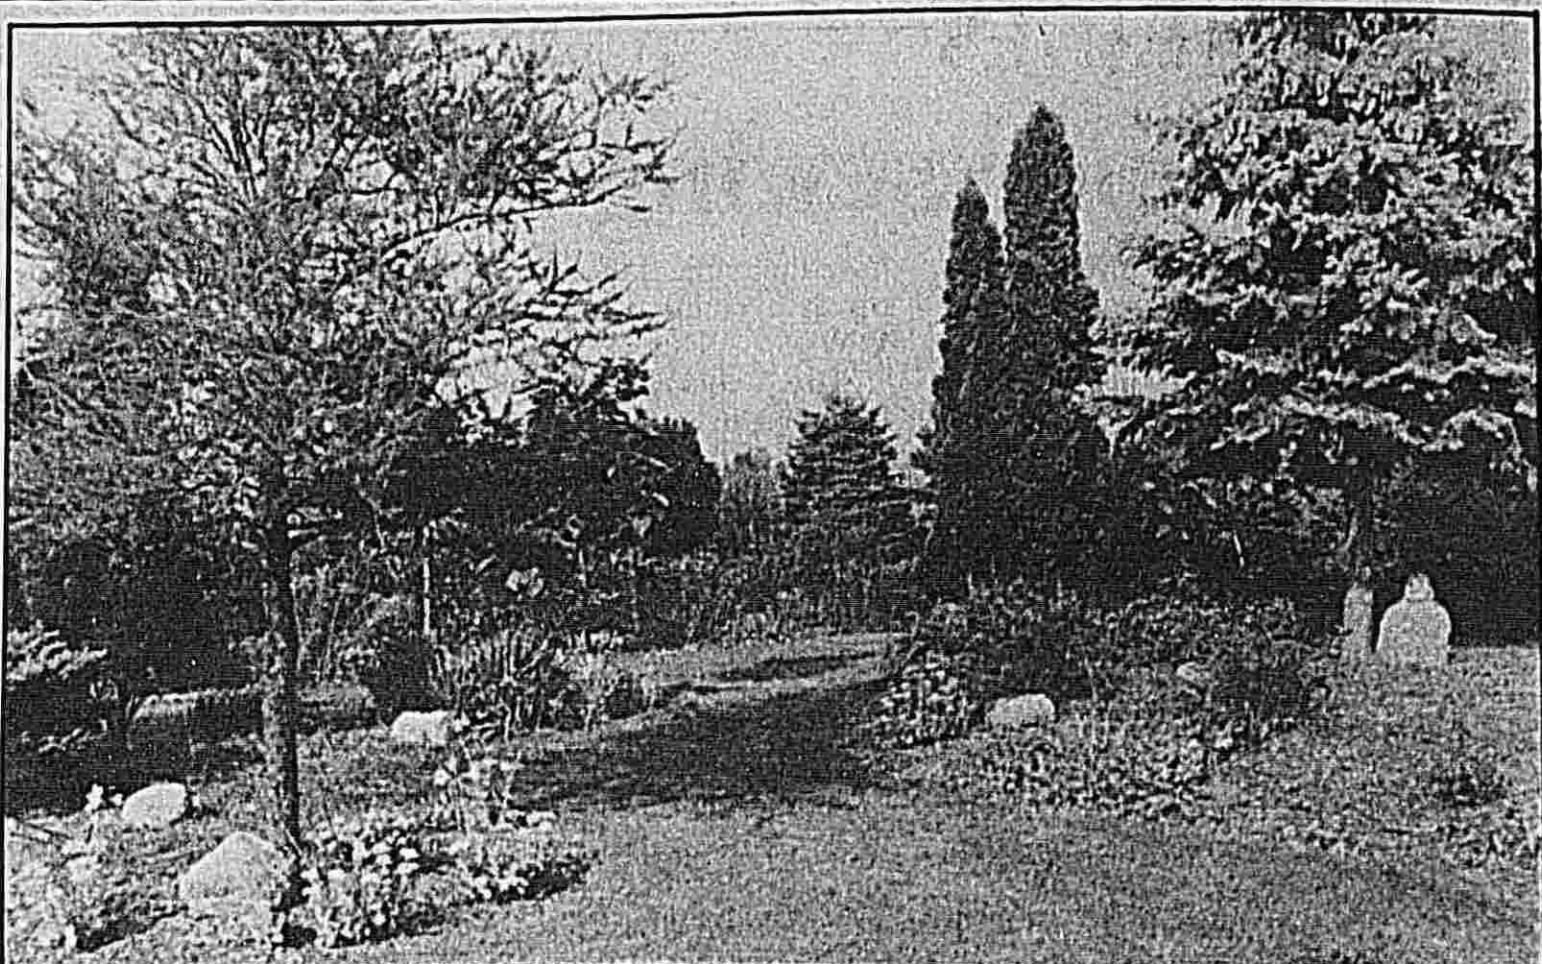

"What I am trying to do is to get all the residents in this area aware of what is going on and to inform them about the proposed extension of Route 53 that will be coming through their back yards," Ziegler said. "Most people are not going to be concerned about Helga Ziegler, but they will be concerned about themselves and their property," she added.

Ziegler said she wanted to educate the people in her area on what is going to happen to their land when and if the extension comes through their land, such as higher taxes, contaminated well water and the impacts on the schools.

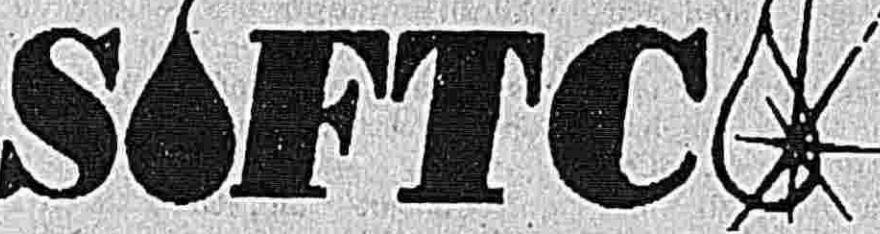

Ziegler's Orchard will be open for apple time beginning Sept. 16 with the Macintosh apples, then starting on Sept. 23 the Jonathan and Courtland apples will be in season. All the other varieties of apple found at the orchard will be ready for picking starting Sept. 30.

Other items available are ready picked apples, pears, jams, jellies, honey, cider, apple pastries, mums, perennials, pumpkins and fall decorations.

The orchard is located on Bacon Road, just south of Route 120 and two miles west of Hainesville, 32363 N. Bacon Rd., Grayslake.

Ziegler's Orchard is more than 17 acres of all types of apple trees, the Zieglers have spent years landscaping and planning for their retirement on their property which may be taken away from them by a tollway. Beyond the perimeter of the foliage lies numerous apple trees with apples ready to be harvested.—Photo by Jennifer Whisenand

YWCA receives grant for cancer program

The YWCA of Northeastern Illinois, Lake and McHenry Counties has been selected as one of 65 YWCAs nationwide to receive a $25,000 grant to increase awareness of the lifesaving benefits of early breast and cervical cancer detection.

It's all part of the YWCA's ENCORE Plus Program, which will work to refer Lake County area women to low- or no-cost health services such as mammograms and Pap tests—in their own communities.

The YWCA's program not only educates women about the importance of early detection and refers them to screening services, but also helps women to overcome barriers that keep them from obtaining critical preventative health care services. For example, the YWCA will teach women to do monthly breast self exams and will assist with transportation to and from their tests and child care arrangements to enable participants to receive medical services.

The YWCA of Northeastern Illinois, Lake and McHenry Counties' ENCORE Plus Program was selected to receive funding from the YWCA of the USA's Fund for Women's Health. This funding is made possible through Avon's Breast Cancer Awareness Crusade, a major public outreach program that is working to increase awareness of breast cancer and improve women's access to early detection services.

Since Avon's crusade was launched in 1993, the company's representatives have raised $10 million through the sale of $2 pink ribbon pins and key rings. These funds have gone to support over 140 community programs across the U.S. through the YWCA of the U.S.A. and the National Alliance of Breast Cancer Organizations (NABCO).

Breast cancer is a threat to every woman. The good news is that early detection could reduce the number of breast cancer deaths by 30 to 40 percent if women follow recommended three-step approach for early detection—annual mammograms, based on age and family history; yearly clinical breast exam; and monthly breast self-exam. And almost all cervical cancer deaths, which number 4,500 each year, can be prevented through screening and early detection. Moreover, low income women and women of color suffer disproportionately higher mortality rates from these diseases.

Rare opportunity for health care reform

Opportunity has knocked many times in the long-running effort to improve our nation's health care delivery system. For a variety of reasons, mostly political, no one has been able to open the door on health care reform even a crack—until now.

For the first time since World War II, both the president and the Congress are in general agreement not only on whether health care reform is needed, but also on the approach that must be taken to achieve the goal. The Republican controlled 104th Congress favors incremental health insurance reform that fixes problems in the system without a top-to-bottom overhaul that would require massive government intervention in the day-to-day health care of Americans.

And now, President Clinton is proposing a similar approach. After the administration's failure to generate much interest in its 1,342 page health care reform bill last year, the president said in his State of the Union Address last January. "This year, let's work together, step by step, and get something done. Let's at least pass something meaningful insurance reform..."

In his balanced budget plan, delivered in June, the president called for specific private health insurance reforms along with changes in Medicare and Medicaid. His insurance reform proposals are similar to those contained in some Republican-sponsored legislation. While there is a danger that disagreements over

Medicare and Medicaid reforms could stall the entire reform process, or that government could become too involved in the private health care system, there is cause for optimism that lawmakers and the president can find common ground on some appropriate insurance reform this year.

The changes now taking place in the health care system, such as managed care and the elimination of paperwork hassles, are being engineered by the private sector. Yet, there remains a need for government action in some specific areas of insurance reform.

On of the most frequent complaints from Americans concerning their health care coverage centers on the problem of "job lock." That's the situation which keeps a worker tied to a company because of a new employer's insurance plan might not cover a pre-existing health problem. This is an area that requires federal legislation.

In fact, a so-called portability bill, introduced by Rep. Bill Thomas (R-Calif.), would solve the job-lock problem by requiring that employers and insurers credit continuous coverage under a prior health plan against any pre-existing condition waiting periods imposed by a new employer's health plan. In an unusual show of bipartisanship, every member of the House Ways and Means Health Subcommittee has signed on as a cosponsor of this bill.

This is a superb illustration of the opportunities that are currently present meaningful, incremental health care reform. It shows that Democrats and Republicans can work together on this often politically charged issue. Let's hope the example of the Ways and Means Health subcommittee causes more lawmakers and the administration to be insightful enough to recognize opportunities and courageous enough to act on them.

Learn to improve self-esteem

Learn how to silence your internal critic and turn off negative thoughts at a community lecture sponsored by St. Therese Medical Center.

"A balanced, healthy lifestyle requires individuals to maintain a sense of psychological well-being and be happy with their lives," explains John Jochem, Psy.D., CADC, adult program director of behavioral medicine at the medical center.

"If we don't, we are more prone to such problems as depression and anxiety. Also, a lack of self-esteem interferes with our personal relationships," Jochem added.

Jochem will discuss the common causes of poor self-esteem and provide practical suggestions on how to be kinder to yourself at a free lecture scheduled for Sept. 13 from 7 to 8 p.m. at the medical center, 2615 Washington St., Waukegan.

LFH invites everyone to 'Baby's First Year' seminar

That little bundle of joy that looked so tiny and helpless just two months ago is now beginning to open his eyes widely at the sight of your face. The lines of a smile are forming on his cheeks as he starts to coo back at the sound of your voice. Your baby is on his way to exploring a whole new world of sights and sounds. And, both of you can't wait until he's able to get down in the trenches and play!

Even though your baby is small, he's awake and more alert for longer periods of time. Lake Forest Hospital offers "Baby's First Year Awake and Active: Baby's Learning Begins" on Thursday, Sept. 28 at 7 p.m. in the hospital's conference center. Parents and their babies are invited to come and explore a variety of play activities to share together.

The program features topics that all new parents are concerned about including when to introduce solids, child safety, changing sleep habits and what's common and uncommon about feeding schedules. Led by Martha Lepman and Amy Smith, child education professionals at Dearhaven, Lake Forest Hospital's child-care facility, you will learn what kinds of activities will stimulate your child's growth and how to potentially develop his/her curiosity and motor skills. Parents will also discover that making and selecting the right toys builds creative play that you can enjoy along with your child.

"Infants need to experience play right from the start," says Smith. "Parents seem at a loss for the types of toys that will stimulate and encourage activity. I'm able to show them ways to be creative by making toys at home for hours of play time fun with their infant," adds Smith.

Subsequent classes will be held for 4 to 8 month olds and 8 to 12 month olds. To register for this program or future "Baby's First Year" offerings, call 234-6112.

Clinic provides services to medically underserved

Since opening in May of 1992, the HealthReach Clinic has seen over 10,000 patients. Responding to the healthcare needs of the homeless, working poor, immigrants and the disabled, the Lake County community quickly pulled together to fill a growing need. Within seven months of identifying the problem, volunteers created the state-of-the-art medical clinic known as HealthReach Clinic.

HealthReach is a free medical clinic located in 1,800 square feet of space leased from the Barwell Settlement on Waukegan's southeast side. Physicians, nurses and clerical personnel, along with community volunteers, donate their time and skills to care for patients, working together to provide a complete spectrum of healthcare services. Pharmaceutical companies donate medications and local pharmacies fill prescriptions for medications not available at the clinic at no cost to clinic users. Area hospitals provide free care on a rotation basis to patients referred from the clinic.

Funds to meet the budgetary needs of the clinic are received from the United Way of Lake County, philanthropic organizations, local corporations and government bodies. The clinic also receives the support of the Lake County Medical Society, whose members serve as HealthReach volunteer physicians.

The clinic is located at 201 Liberty St., Waukegan. The staff sees patients 25 hours each week, with office hours on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. For information and appointments, call 360-8800.

World Music Fest highlights Adler's 'Festival of the Arts'

For the second year the David Adler Center's annual Festival of the Arts will feature a special Saturday night World Music Fest. The concert will culminate a full day of outdoor folk music performances in the East Garden Terrace outside the Adler House. The Adler Center is located at 1700 N. Milwaukee Ave. in Libertyville.

This year's festival will present the traditional music of Sweden, the Basque Region, and Mexico. All three featured groups make use of the violin or fiddle, one of the world's most versatile folk instruments.

Pickled Herrings is a Chicago-area group that plays the hauntingly beautiful traditional music of Sweden, using several violins and the nyckelharpa, a unique traditional instrument also known as a keyed fiddle. This is music for dancing "hambos," "polskas," and other turning couple dances. From West Lafayette, Ind. comes Basquing in Sound, playing the music of the Basque homeland (an unrecognized territory on the Spanish-French border) on violin and the European-style button accordion. Aukene and Inaki are joined by a guitarist and drummer for their treatments of the distinctive Basque rhythm called "zortiko," and other dance music from the Iberian peninsula. Closing the program will be Chicago's Sones de México Ensemble, playing the traditional Mexican folk music styles known as "son" and "huapango." Their instrumentation includes the violin and several indigenous relatives of the guitar, in varying sizes: the "jarana," the "vihuela," and the "guitaron."

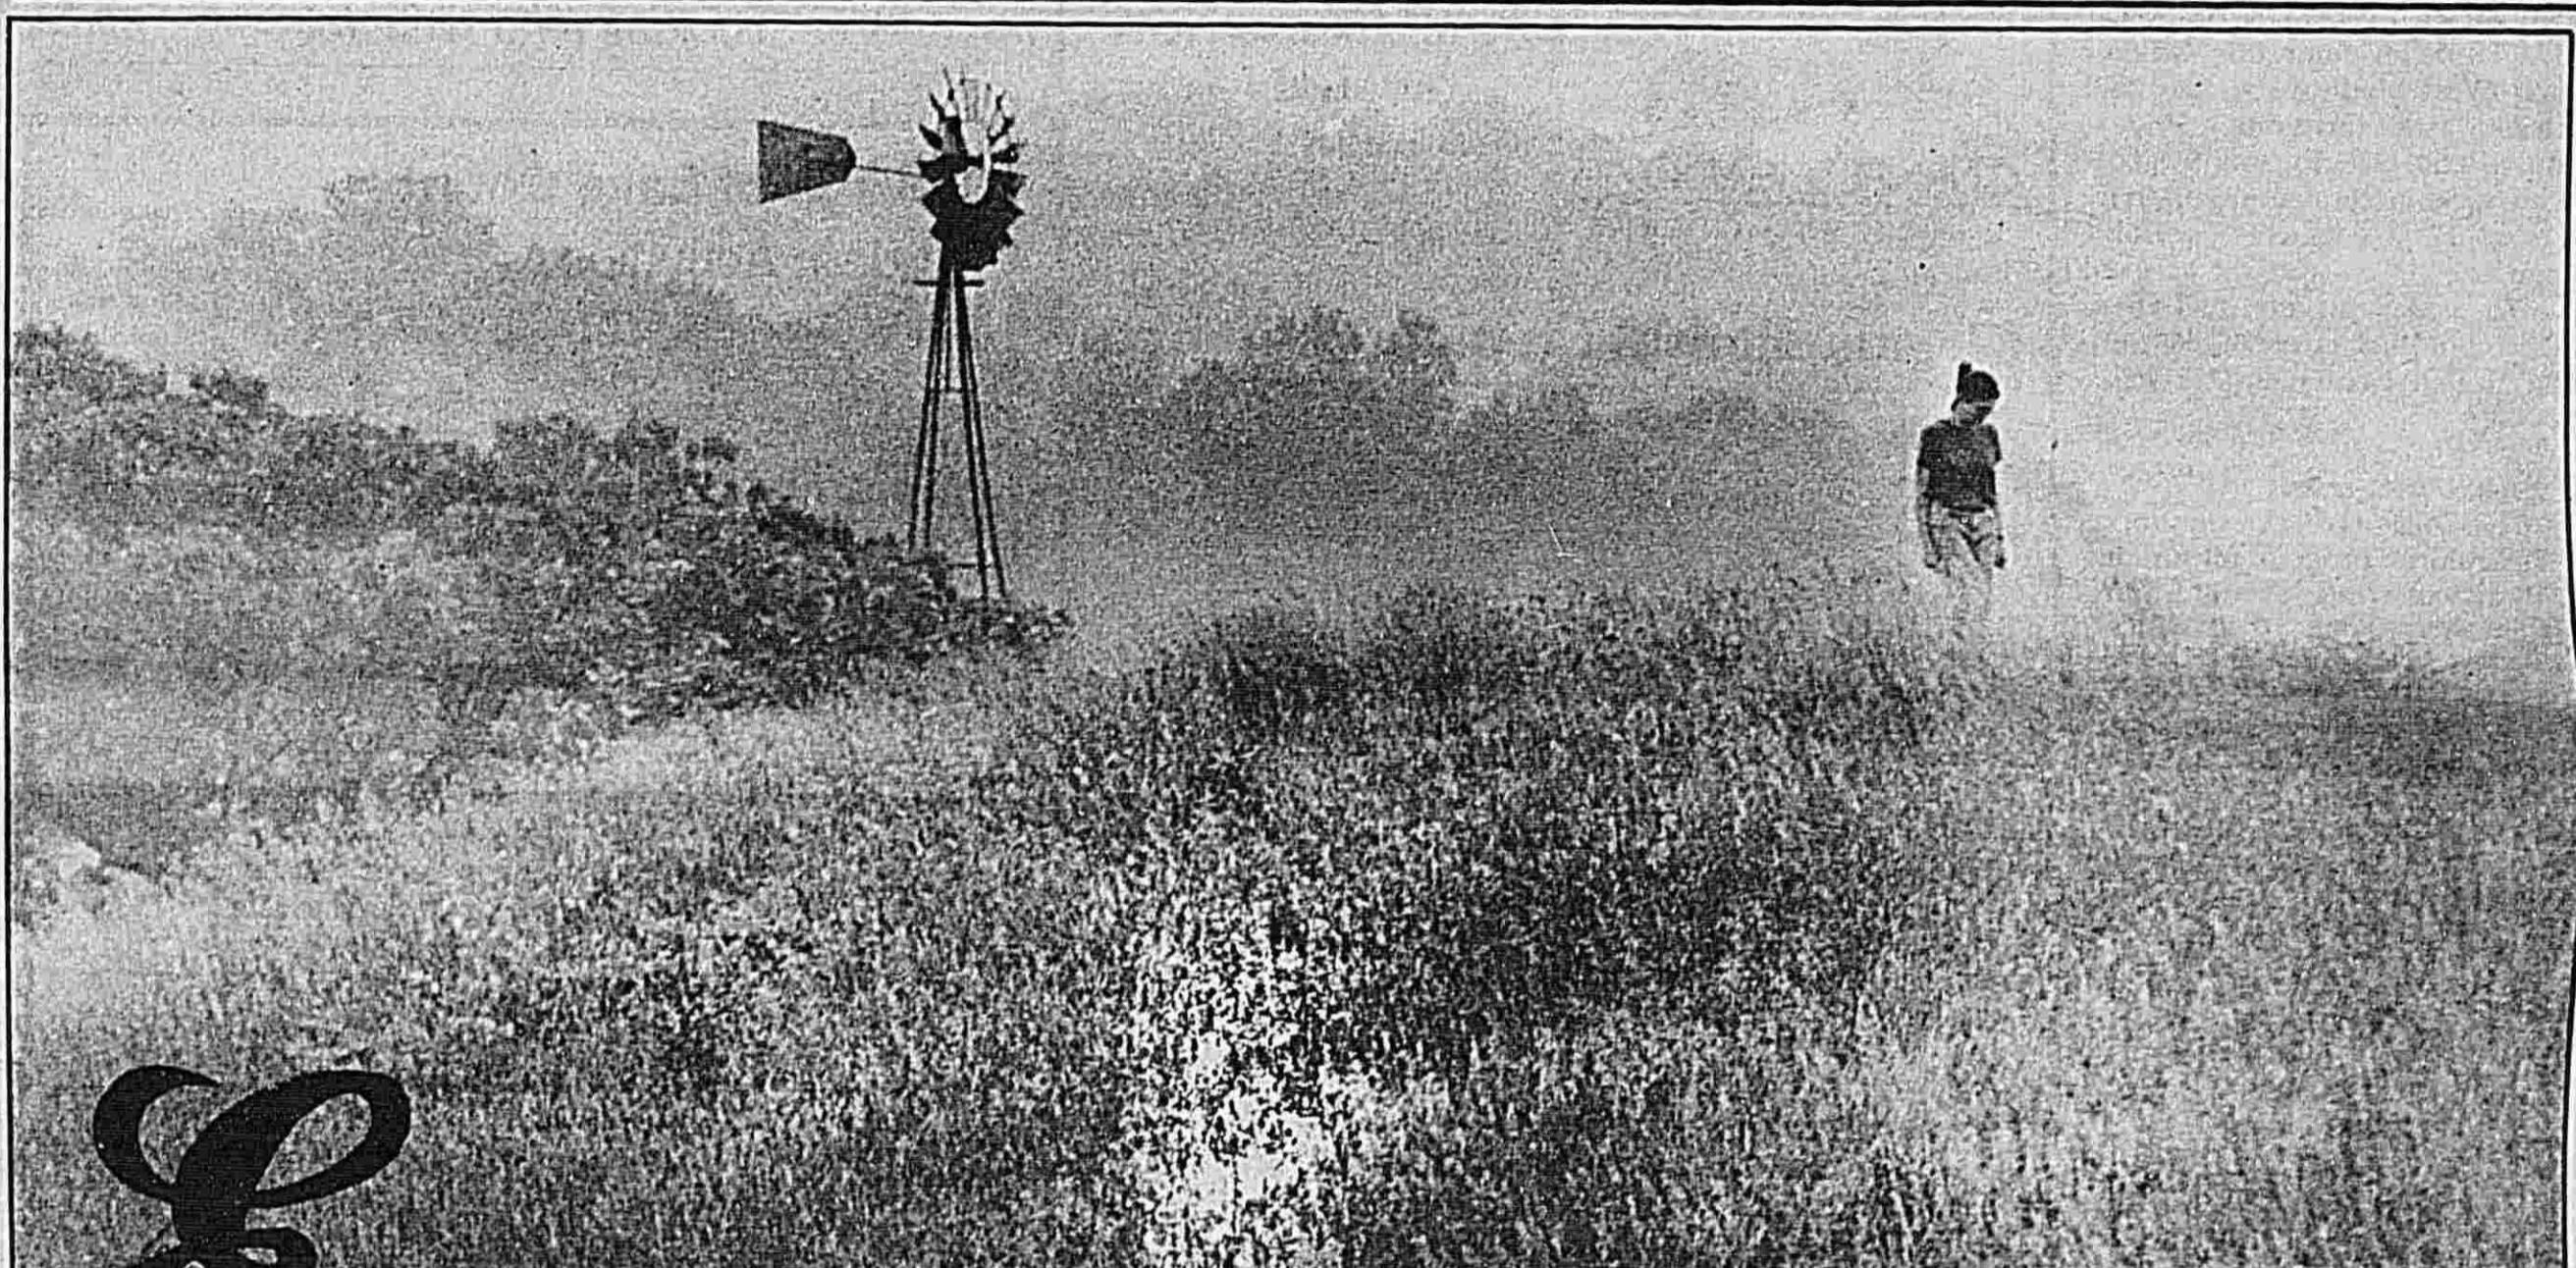

A donation is requested for admission to the evening concert: $8 for adults, $5 for DACC members, seniors and children under 16. The concert will be held outdoors, so attendees may feel free to bring their own lawn chairs, and blankets. Picnicking is encouraged by the music stage, which runs all day. Several food vendors will be present at the festival during the day and evening. For more information, call the Adler Center at 367-0707.

The evening concert at 7 p.m. will be preceded by two hours of dance music (beginning at 5 p.m.) to the music of the Chicago Cajun Aces and the Cook County Revelers. The fiddle and accordion-led Cajun Aces specialize in the French two-steps, waltzes, and jitterbug popular in the rural dances halls in the prairies and bayous of southwestern Louisiana. The public is invited to discover the joy of these energetic couple dances. Brief lessons in these steps will be given. The Cook County See FESTIVAL page B10

E nvironmentalists say tollway threatens natural treasures

CLAUDIA M. LENART

Regional Editor

A group of hikers went exploring one hot, summer Saturday afternoon. In little more than one mile the trail took them past wetlands live with frogs, swaying prairies where butterflies crossed their path and savannas where they enjoyed some respite from the heat under the shade of the oak trees.

At the climax of the hike, they climbed the kame (a steep, conical hill). The climb was somewhat grueling in the afternoon sun. But, when they reached the top of the treeless kame, the view was well worth it. The hikers looked down upon an endless, verdant field traversed by the tree-lined Nippersink Creek.

"Isn't this what Northern Illinois is all about? Illinoisans don't know what they have. It's so beautiful," said Cindy Skrukud, executive director of the McHenry County Defenders and a native of Colorado.

Skrukud then pointed out where an extension of Route 53, the Waukegan to Richmond tollroad may go through Glacial Park. Land which is currently owned by the Illinois Department of Transportation as a right of way bisects the field beneath the kames. There is a possibility that hikers in the future would be looking down upon the tollroad instead of the open meadow.

The group of hikers had gathered as part of an Ecotour, sponsored by the Illinois Environmental Council along with the McHenry County Defenders. The purpose of the tour was to explore two pristine Illinois Nature Preserves, Glacial Park and Volo Bog, which are threatened by the proposed tollroad extension.

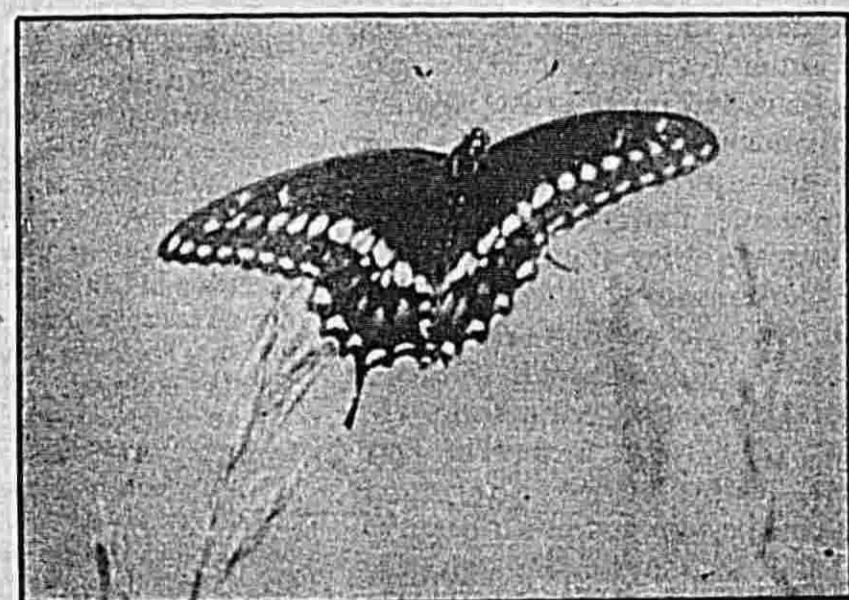

Glacial Park, located near Solon Mills in northeast McHenry County, is the hallmark of the McHenry County Conservation District. The 3,000-acre site is the home to varied ecosystems and geological treasures. It has the Nippersink River, a prairie, a savanna, marsh, fen and bog as well as the gravel and sand kames. Volo Bog is an Illinois State Natural Area located outside of Volo on the Lake and McHenry county border. It totals 869 acres and includes two other bogs, prairie restoration areas, hardwood forests and successional fields.

"I'm concerned with my children's future. I think they should have places like Volo Bog and Glacial Park as part of their heritage. I want this there for them," said Betty Sterling, president of the McHenry County Defenders' board of directors, in a later interview.

"Volo Bog is one of the most unique properties in the state. This bog is thousands of years old. With one swoop of a bulldozer it could be destroyed," said Sterling.

The features that make Volo Bog and Glacial Park unique were formed by the actions of the Wisconsin glacier some 10,000 to 15,000 years ago.

In Glacial Park, the Wisconsin glacier formed kettles and kames. The melting at the edge of the glacier formed a waterfall. The waterfall deposited a pile of gravel pieces, all uniform in size, to form the cone-shaped hills. There are also small sand-filled kames at Glacial Park. Kath Beall, education program coordinator for the McHenry County Conservation District, said there were many more kames in northern Illinois, but most were mined away for the gravel.

The kettles were formed by pieces of the glacier falling off like a gigantic ice cube, explained Beall. The pieces of glacial ice pressed down the earth to form kettles. The kettles turned into wetlands or ponds depending upon the absorbency of the soil beneath.

Revelers will offer square dancing to the driving sound of fiddler and banjo. Again, the public is invited to participate. No experience is necessary, as all dances will be taught.

Preceding the dance hour, the outdoor music stage on the East Garden Terrace will host a variety of area folk music artists who are friends of the long-running Folk Music program at the Adler house. Performers include Beggar's Alley (founders of the Lake County Folk Music Club), finger-style guitarist Eric Noden, and All In A Row, a women's acapella singing group formed at the Old Town School of Folk Music in Chicago. The music stage performances will begin at 1 p.m. with the first hour given to recitals by students in the DACC's Folk Music Program.

FREE Report Reveals The 10 Biggest Mistakes Retirees Make And How To Avoid Them!

Northbrook, IL - A local retirement expert has just published a report that explains the 10 biggest mistakes people make when they retire, and how to avoid them. He cited an example of a couple who took their retirement money and invested almost all of it into "risk free" things, and had to eventually move in with their children because they literally ran out of money. Another woman had to pay over $29,000 in needless income taxes because she made a seemingly small mistake with the choices she made at retirement. Obviously, the mistake wasn't so small. Retirement is a point in your life that doesn't allow the luxury of time to make up for mistakes. Once you've reached that age, you have little or no room for "trial and error" methods of taking care of your money. Accordingly, the retirement expert has prepared a FREE report called, "The Ten Biggest Mistakes People Make When Retiring, And How To Avoid Them And How To Stop Using 'Trial And Error' As Your Main Technique Of Retirement Financial Management."

The report is available by calling 1-800-640-5530 for a FREE recorded message.

LIFE'S A BEAR

DONNA ABEAR

Vacation memories for sale—$5

Until the arrival of my daughter last year, I had been the only woman in a family of males, and needless to say, discussions of where to go on vacations or short trips usually included the words "fish," "camping" or "bug repellent." Somehow, the word "luxury" never came up.

So, for lack of votes and "luxury" funds, we have mostly spent our trips in places like "the Musky capital of the world," where fish the size of buffalo are rumored to be lurking in every lake and pond (except the one you're fishing on). I could barely contain my excitement on those trips, as I thrilled to the challenge of things like attempting to get a leech on my hook without actually touching it. Ah, memories.

This year, the guys decided to try something new. I say "the guys" because despite the addition of my 20-month-old daughter's vote, it is still 4 to 2, and truthfully, she can't be counted on anyway since she smiles and says "Yeah!" to every question asked.

"Do you want to go to Hawaii?"

"Yeah!"

"Do you want to be tied up in a wet diaper and forced to watch reruns of the O.J. Simpson trial?"

"Yeah!"

As you can see, she is very enthusiastic, but she changes her mind more than President Clinton. It's obvious I have some work cut out for me in the mother/daughter female bonding department.

Needless to say, the "something new" consisted of a short trip to southern Illinois to visit our friends, the Simpson family—

Jim, Jane and son Morgan—down on the farm. You might even call the accommodations "luxury," since Jim's mom Susie, who welcomes company, has a very large, bi-level home with all the amenities, set back in the woods without a manure pile in sight. So, this had all the makings of a pleasant trip, except for two little details we didn't count on—the baby and the bugs.

Baby Samantha started out the trip on her best behavior—sleeping. We then made the mistake of stopping for fast food, and several flies joined us in the car, uninvited, along with the hamburgers. Samantha woke to the sight of monstrous winged "bees" landing on her arms and legs, and proceeded to scream for the next 100 miles, which is how long it took to kill the flies.

Now, before anyone cites me for cruelty to flies, I'll have you know that we opened all the windows and tried to shoo them out. Instead of leaving, they clung to the edge of the window and rubbed their legs together, apparently a universal fly signal for "free food." So, we were forced to change our tactics from "Shoo fly" to "Goo fly" (which is what they look like after a good swat).

When an estimated 15 flies had finally been sent to that big exterminator in the sky, things calmed down and we entertained the older children the rest of the way by playing "20 Questions." Our 6 year old received the "most creative player" award, with questions like, "Is the person constipated?"

Things got lively again when we finally arrived at Susie's house, as we switched gears from "Shoo fly" to "Catch Samantha." This was a fun new game which involved Samantha finding each breakable, expensive object that Susie owns and daringly running across the room while holding it in one hand. Talk about excitement!

The final memorable moment of our trip involved my teenage son, Sean. He and my husband decided to go fishing on a farm pond that no one had been to all summer. Once they arrived, Sean decided to jump onto a floating raft to get a better fishing spot. Well, he made it to the raft and suddenly felt a strange stinging sensation on his leg. He looked down to see a swarm of wasps surrounding him. They had made a nest under the raft, and were now awake and apparently playing our car game, "Shoo fly" or, in this case, "Shoo, Sean." Ten stings later, Sean escaped (those bees play to win).

I assume this must be what they meant by "Kodak Moments." You just can't buy memories like these. Unless you want to. In that case, send $5 to "The Abeard Family Luxury Vacation Fund." I'll send you a picture of Sean's leg (suitable for framing).

Cooking by the Book

A creative hand with tomatoes

While single-themed specialty cookbooks are nothing new, "The Tomato Cookbook" by Roy F. Guste Jr. (Pelican Publishing Co., 1995) is a worthy addition to the genre.

This is especially true as a bumper crop of the versatile "love apples" comes to table.

Guste gives a seemingly endless variety of recipes for tomatoes, whether as appetizers, beverages, salads, side courses, with meats, poultry, eggs or seafood or in sauces. His soup recipes are innovative and palate-pleasing. Particularly refreshing on a late summer's evening is the following:

Tomato and Eggplant Bisque

1 strip bacon, minced
1 large onion, skinned and rough-chopped
4 medium tomatoes, skinned, seeded and chopped
1 small eggplant, skinned and chopped
2 cloves garlic, chopped
2 cups chicken stock or tomato juice
1 cup heavy cream
2 bay leaves
1/2 tsp. turmeric
1/2 tsp. cayenne pepper
Salt to taste
Black pepper, freshly ground, to taste
1 T. freshly squeezed lemon juice
2 minced green onions

In a saucepan or soup pot, render the fat from the minced bacon and sauté the onions until they become soft. Add the other ingredients except the salt, pepper, lemon juice and green onions; bring to a boil; turn down to a simmer and cook for about 45 minutes. Season to taste with salt and freshly ground black pepper.

Transfer the soup to a blender container and process into a liquid. Return to the pot and adjust seasonings, if desired. Just before serving, add the lemon juice to the bisque. Ladle the bisque out into bowls and garnish with chopped green onions. Serves four.

Note: Adjust thickness of the bisque with additional stock, tomato juice or water. The bisque should be quite thick.—by TOM WITOM

Movie Pick

Banderas makes wannabe try for an action hero berth

In case you have been living in a cave somewhere and haven't heard or seen the much-touted visage of Antonio Banderas, the first movie that he stars in, "Desperado," will give you that chance.

It looks like Banderas is finished playing "second guitar" to Latin lovers like Armand Assante, who by the way is a much better actor and more sexy, in our book.

If you thought Cher was big time because she only had to use one name, in "Desperado," Banderas has no name.

Banderas, who already has several more pics in the can for future release, plays a Mariachi, or Spanish singer and guitar player, seeking revenge against Joaquin de Almeida who plays a big-time drug dealer. It seems the drug lord not only killed Banderas' girlfriend, but shot him in his guitar-playing hand.

Director Robert Rodriguez hands us some outstandingly lush action scenes, yet the timing of the entire film is jagged and full of peaks and valleys.

Banderas and company treats the audience to some magnetic top speed action like singing banditos launching rockets from their guitar cases, and then enters a calm until the next explosive scene.

Most critics are predicting that Banderas will join Stallone, Arnold and Bruce, the top danger strangers, in marking up quality kills. So he might become another high-paid vendor of sex, sadism and sanguine sieges.

All this reviewer sees is one of many handsome Latin actors who isn't too bad, but who lacks that special big-time charisma. In our book he's a Ricky Ricardo without Lucy.

What he does have is a marvelous pressman who is out to convince the public that Banderas is the 1990's Valentino. We guess that Melanie Griffith isn't the only one who has bought this program.

Because of the fantastic photography and the unique fight scenes and quality kills done with some panache, we give "Desperado" three out of five stars.

Banderas is a real-life desperado in the lack-of-personality department. We look into what one critic calls "those onyx pools of sex," almost covered with his

Antonio Banderas

long greasy hair, and see nothing but stagnant black eyeballs.—by GLORIA DAVIS

Kelly-Miller Circus bigger and better than ever

Comical clowns will entertain children of all ages when the Kelly-Miller Circus comes to Holiday Park in Ingleside for two shows, Sept. 12.

Relive the experience you had as a kid, and show your own children what they've been missing when the Kelly-Miller Circus comes to town.

Elephants, tigers, dancing bears and amazing feats will be introduced by the ringmaster under the big-top tent Sept. 12 at the Holiday Park grounds on Rte. 134 in Ingleside.

The reputation that the Kelly-Miller Circus has gained over the years is a constant challenge that President David Rawls continually strives to improve on.

Working in conjunction with the circus tent maker in Italy, a specially designed tent will make its debut this year. Enabling the circus to present a wider variety of aerial acts in a higher tent, the new circular concept allows the public equal distance seating from the main performance ring.

A custom built light system complete with special effects has been designed, and Kelly-Miller Circus is one of the very few who still carry a live band.

Some of the featured acts include the Perez Family from Mexico.

Due to the additional height of the new tent, for the first time ever, at the Kelly-Miller Circus, this group will present the always popular and ever-dangerous flying trapeze.

Balancing feats will be performed with grace, beauty and poise by the Galarreta family of Argentina and Peru.

Animals are always a favorite with children of all ages. Miss Cindi will delight audiences with the Six-Horse Liberty Act, as well as assisting Roy Wells in the presentation of the Kelly-Miller Circus elephants. Myrna Silverake and her clever canines will capture the hearts of young and old.

The Fox Lake Lions Club is sponsoring the event and ask that everyone get their tickets in advance at Second Federal Savings and Loan in Fox Lake on Grand Ave. and Rte. 12.

Advance tickets are $7 for adults and $4 for children. Tickets at the door are $5 and $8.—by TINA L. SWIECH

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Place the accent on cooperation and diplomacy this week. Little things are likely now to interfere with getting your way. However, these aren't exactly insurmountable obstacles, so be resourceful.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Your efforts to read between the lines could lead you to jump to the wrong conclusions. These faulty assumptions can cause hard feelings among co-workers, so try to be more analytical. It takes extra effort to be productive.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A close partner is sensitive this week and easily offended. Be careful of ill-considered remarks that could give offense. By week's end, this person opens up and tells you what's wrong. Social life takes a back seat this weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Not much will come of big talk you hear in business this week, so try not to give this too much credence. Instead, take what you hear with a grain of salt. A family member is out of sorts this weekend and should be pampered.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Double-check costs in connection with certain travel plans. Slight strain could exist between you and a close relative. This person is being unreasonable, so try to ignore it. Others' sensitivities get in the way of reaching agreements this weekend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Extra expenses could arise in connection with a loved one this week. Instead of being angry at this person, do your best to be generous and gracious. A business proposition received now requires revisions before accepting it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Keep the lines of communication open with those close to you. You have a tendency to clam up at times and this perplexes people. Don't put others in a position where they feel they have to read your mind.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Distractions and interruptions are likely to interfere with your concentration at work this week. As a result, your accomplishments could fall short of your good intentions. By week's end, you are ready for a long rest to recharge your energy.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You'll need to be tactful in speech this week. A loved one or friend could easily take offense at something you say in a glib or offhand manner. A social invitation for the weekend could prove to be more costly than you'd like.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Unexpected company dropping by could upset your domestic schedule early in the week. In business, a moody higher-up or associate has to be handled with kid gloves if you are to accomplish all you set out to do this week.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't put too much stock in what a person who tends to exaggerate has to say this week.

You've never listened to this person before. Now's not the time to start. It's not a good week for getting your ideas across to other.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Judgment could be off this week regarding spending, an unusual occurrence for you. You are making a certain personal matter more complicated than it needs to be. Stop being such a gloom and doomer!

Park

Volo Bog was formed when a block of ice several hundred acres long and two miles thick broke off from the glacier to form a kettle. When the ice melted in the poorly drained area, it made a bog. Most bogs are in the northern areas of the globe. Volo Bog is the southernmost bog in the United States.

The stagnant, low oxygen water of the bog allowed the establishment of a floating mat of sphagnum moss which supported acid-loving plant life. Eventually, the mat grew thicker and encroached ever closer to the center of the old glacial lake. What's left of the lake in Volo Bog is a half-acre pond which is 50 feet deep in the middle. Volo Bog is the only bog in Illinois to exhibit all stages of bog succession.

The bog is a unique ecosystem with water that is very high in acidity. In a Denmark bog, bodies were found preserved for over 2,000 years.

The acidic environment of the bog is the home for many acid-loving plants such as the threatened leatherleaf and the endangered grass pink orchid and the endangered pitcher plant, an insect eating plant. These plants are usually found in Canada and northern Michigan.

Both Glacial Park and Volo Bog provide a home for the rare landings turtle. Volo Bog attracts magnificent birds such as the great blue heron, the endangered sandhill crane and the endangered great egret. A Glacial Park marsh restoration project has attracted the bald eagle.

Although the route of the proposed tollway has not been confirmed by the Illinois State Toll Highway Authority, the Illinois Department of Transportation has a right-of-way through Glacial Park and through Volo Bog State Natural Area. The right of way through Volo Bog is near the smaller Pistakee Bog to the north. The Toll Authority has not announced any official time-frame for the extension through McHenry, but it could be as far as 20 years away.

The Illinois Nature Preserves

Commission made a report that identifies the alignments for the proposed tollway and natural resources potentially impacted by them. It specifically identified Volo Bog, Pistakee Bog, Glacial Park and Lake Elizabeth (as well as many natural areas in Lake County) as being threatened. It also identified various endangered and threatened species which could be in the path of the tollway.

Although the Toll Authority states the route would be subject to realignment to avoid Volo Bog and Glacial Park, the final path of the tollway is still unknown. Environmentalists fear that even a nearby tollroad have adverse effects on the fragile ecosystems. A flyer produced by the Friends of Volo Bog asks "Can the orchids and pitcher plants survive 24-hour exposure to exhaust fume? Will sandhill cranes still fly overhead when the bog's surrounding open fields have disappeared?"

Angel Mora, a naturalist at Volo Bog, is concerned with possible salt run-off from the tollroad. The alkaline salt could destroy the acidity of the bog and change it forever. "We've got great stuff here. We want to make sure it's preserved," said Mora.

The McHenry County Defenders believe the tollroad is not only an ecological threat, but is also unnecessary.

"Let's put the money into upgrading existing roads which will serve people who live in the county as opposed to a tollroad designed to quickly move people through our county," said Skrukud.

The Defenders have confidence that they can beat the tollroad. In 1992, the group along with conservation groups in Kane County were successful in beating the Fox River Valley Freeway which would have followed a similar route through McHenry County.

Gov. Jim Edgar killed the plan in reaction to protests from environmental groups.

"Gov. Edgar is very environmentally aware. I think he has a strong desire of wanting to do the right thing," said Sterling.

The Toll Authority must submit public hearing statements and its plans to the Governor. He will either approve or withhold approval of the proposed tollway.

The McHenry County Defenders and Friends of Volo Bog are urging concerned citizens to write to the governor urging him to nix the Rte. 53 extension. For more information call the McHenry County Defender, (815) 338-0393 or the Friends of Volo Bog (815) 344-1294.

Fall Foliage

Extend garden color, interest into fall, winter

The dog days of summer have begun to take their toll on garden plants, but homeowners needn't resign themselves to watching their planting beds fade away until next spring. Opportunities abound for extending garden color and interest into fall and even winter.

"People tend to assume that once late summer arrives and their annuals have become leggy and worn, the garden season is almost over," says Ren Heynssens, president of Heynssens and Grassman Landscape Architects, in Libertyville. "But there's a whole palette of plants that are ideal for lengthening garden enjoyment well beyond summer."

Substituting fall-blooming annuals for summer annuals is one option, says Heynssens. Others include choosing plants that have colorful fall foliage; those that produce seasonal berries; those that feature unusually colored twigs or unique branching patterns, or types that dry and remain in the garden as sculptural elements.

Pansies, which are cool-weather annuals, have typically been used in early spring plantings. But they're increasingly being used as fall substitutes for summer annuals, adding a rich variety of colors and a fresh look for a tired garden. Ornamental kale can add both color and texture. A cabbage-like annual with fringed leaf edges, it is available in green with white or purple highlights. Also, traditional fall-blooming favorites, such as chrysanthemums and asters, are widely available and help rejuvenate with a burst of color.

As for ornamental trees, common witchhazel offers a pleasant surprise when most other deciduous plants have dropped their leaves. It features a unique yellow flower that blooms in mid-October or November, and occasionally in December. Vernal witch hazel is an option for late-winter interest. It blooms in February or March.

Brightly colored fall foliage on shrubs and trees can extend the visual life of a garden, says Heynssens. Serviceberry is a small, multistemmed ornamental tree with vibrant orange-red fall color. Amur maple, another small ornamental tree, displays brilliant red fall leaves. There's the ever-popular burning bush, with its fiery red leaves, and several types of viburnum, offering a range of fall colors.

Along with attractive foliage, viburnums also produce red or blue/black berries in late summer and early fall. Some persist into winter, providing points of color in the landscape. Winterberry, a small- to medium-sized shrub, sports bright red berries long into winter. Old-fashioned roses bear reddish orange rose hips for added appeal. Even small trees, such as hawthorns, produce berries that last into fall. Some varieties of crab apples hold their fruit through winter, adding not only visual interest but a welcomed food source for birds.

How about stem color? Red-twigged dogwood is a shrub with red stems that can't help but be noticed in a snowy white landscape. Japanese kerria's graceful bright green stems are another winter standout.

Form can also play an important role in sustaining interest in the fall and winter landscape. The overall branching pattern and shape of woody plants are particularly evident when leaves have fallen. Consider horizontally branched small trees, such as pagoda dogwood and cockspur hawthorn, the picturesque silhouette of the redbud, or the upright pyramidal outline of the black alder when planning your garden. Unusually shaped plants, such as contorted and weeping varieties, also add spice.

Lastly, don't forget plants that lend beauty to the landscape when allowed to dry. Ornamental grasses, such as fountain grass, feather reed grass and maiden grass, dry to a wispy tanish brown in fall. Hydrangea flowers dry nicely when left on the plant. And coneflower, Siberian Iris and Sedum 'Autumn Joy' are a sampling of perennials whose dried seed heads add interesting texture.

The opportunities abound. When you select any plant material, however, be sure the cultural conditions in your garden will allow the plant to flourish.

Favorable time for seeding lawns

Need to seed a new lawn or areas of your established lawn? Now is the time to do it. Early September is the ideal time for seeding lawn grasses in the Lake County area, according to Bruce Spangenberg, horticulture educator with the Univ. of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service Center in Grayslake.

Eliminate existing weed problems on the site, especially perennial weeds such as quackgrass. Spangenberg suggests that these may be dug by hand, but it is critical to remove the entire plant. Another option is to use an nonselective herbicide, such as glyphosate, sold as Roundup or Kleenup. Once the weeds are dead, the area can be worked up and seeded. This herbicide doesn't leave an active soil residue that would harm seedlings.

Thoroughly working the soil before seeding or sodding is critical. Many lawn problems are traced back to poor soil preparation before lawn establishment.

If a poor soil exists, Spangenberg suggests to improve it by adding organic material, such as compost, peat, rotted manure, etc. Six inches or more of well prepared soil is suggested.

Once the site is prepared, match the lawn species to the site. Kentucky bluegrass is suggested for sun areas, often mixed with other grasses. Use a blend of 3 to 5 Kentucky bluegrass cultivars. Fine fescues are suggested for shade; look for commercially available shade lawn mixes. Perennial ryegrass is often mixed into grass seed for quick establishment and for improved wear tolerance.

Finally, Spangenberg concludes that all newly seeded grasses need adequate moisture to assure germination and early seedling survival. Putting down a light straw mulch can help prevent rapid drying and helps keep the soil in place until the grass is established. Use about 1 bale per 1,000 square feet of area.

Fall Foliage

Bottling blooms for next year's spring garden

What do cannas, caladiums, dahlias, gladiolus, and tuberous begonias have in common? Besides producing gorgeous blooms or foliage all summer, none of them usually survive Lake County winters, says the Univ. of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service. If you want to see these same beauties in your garden next year, set aside some time this fall to ready them for winter storage.

Caladiums (elephant ears) and tuberous begonias require similar preparations. After seven or eight months of growing, these tubers need a well-deserved rest. Dig them up after the first frost to rescue the tubers, even if you grow them in containers which you bring inside. Remove the foliage, shake off any excess dirt, and dry them in a warm, well-ventilated place for several days. Store caladiums and begonias in a container filled with dry peat moss, vermiculite, or perlite in an airy, dry, frost-free (40 to 50 degrees F) room throughout the winter.

On to cannas, which seems to multiply readily and give you the opportunity to share with your friends. After the first frost, cut back the stalks to four inches, and dig up the rhizomes. Keep as much soil as possible around the roots, and let them dry for several days. Store cannas in a cool, dry, well-ventilated area until you plant them next spring.

Storing dahlias requires some extra care since they tend to dry out easily. Dahlia tuberous roots connect by a thin neck to the central growing point. Dig them with care because tuberous roots become useless when broken off at that thin stem.

Cut the foliage to four inches, and remove excess dirt. Overwinter them in dry peatmoss and a cool, dry, well-ventilated room. Wait until spring when you can see the growing points before dividing dahlias.

Gladiolus foliage needs four to six weeks to cure after blooming, although most people wait until after frost to dig them up. Lift corms out of the soil, cut the foliage to 1 1/2 inches, and shake off the extra soil. Dry them in your garage or similar place for two weeks, then separate the old corm from the young ones. Place gladiolus in onion sacks or other breathable containers, and place them in a cool, dry, well-ventilated room.

With any of these tender specialized structures, discard diseased, insect-ridden, or otherwise suspect bulbs, and store the remainder. Dust them before storage with a fungicide containing Thiram according to label direction. If you think diseases may pose a problem,

How to ditch that autumn itch

In most parts of the country, ragweed season begins in mid-August and continues until the first killing frost, usually late in October or November. More than 90 percent of allergy sufferers have itchy eyes, the most common symptom of seasonal allergic conjunctivitis.

If the primary symptom is itchy eyes, a topical nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drug (NSAID), such as Acular® Indicated specifically to treat the ocular itch associated with seasonal allergic conjunctivitis. It is recommended. They are safe and fast-acting, and do not cause side effects or have drug-to-drug interactions that often come with systemic medications, explains Michael Ralzman, MD, assistant professor of ophthalmology at Tufts Univ. School of Medicine, Boston.

According to Ralzman, the immediate action of topical medications is important. Instant relief of ocular itch is preferable to waiting for systemic antihistamines to take effect because most people continue to rub their itchy eyes. Instead of relieving the intense itch, rubbing the eyes actually exacerbates itchiness, leading to what physicians refer to as the Itch-Rub Cycle.

Without treatment, rubbing can further irritate the eyes, and can cause the eyes to become red and swollen.

Fall Foliage

Plan now for spring fever; plant flowering bulbs

Autumn is the season to prepare for spring fever—the feeling of anticipation that occurs when daffodils and tulips fill the yard with blossoms to announce that warmer weather is on the way. Bulbs need the fall and winter cold to develop roots and lay dormant until the gradually warming weather brings blossoms. So, flowering bulbs must be planted in fall to ensure a colorful and exciting spring.

Plant bulbs in perennial borders, lawns, rock gardens, under trees, or anywhere else a splash of color is desired. The flowers will come back year after year if they are given a hospitable growth environment composed of soil, garden sand, and Canadian Sphagnum Peat Moss. The sand provides drainage while all-natural Canadian Peat Moss holds air, moisture and nutrients at proper levels.

Favorite bulbs

The most difficult part of planting bulbs is choosing among the hundreds of species and hybrids available. Gardeners tend to favor the following types:

Allium—A showy relative of the onion, this lilac, pink or yellow flower grows on stems nine inches to three feet tall, making it an excellent background plant.

Chionodoxa—Commonly known as "Glory-of-the-Snow," this early spring flower produces four to six inch sprigs of white, blue or pink star-like blossoms, making it ideal for borders and rock gardens.

Muscaris—Nicknamed the "Grape Hyacinth," these tiny, bright purple flowers multiply quickly and make excellent borders.

Narcissus—Commonly called daffodils, this large group of flowers comes in many shapes and shades.

Tulips—The most popular of all spring flowering bulbs, tulips offer a wide range of choices in height, color, shape and bloom time.

Planting tips

Unless the bulbs are to be "naturalized" (scattered) throughout the garden, which requires individual holes for each bulb, it is best to plant them in mass, using a large trench for each group. Whatever the design, follow these steps to guarantee bulbs that will thrive year after year:

Prepare the soil—Turn the soil over to a depth of about 10 inches to give roots room to grow. Condition the soil and improve drainage by mixing equal parts Canadian Sphagnum Peat Moss, garden sand and soil together.

Rake in a top layer of bone meal (use about five pounds per 100 square feet), and let the natural fertilizer work its way slowly down into the soil. In addition, use a complete fertilizer, such as 5-10-5, to increase bloom size and vigor. This can be added while the soil is being prepared or applied to the ground surface shortly before bulbs bloom.

The air, water and plant food will be retained in Canadian Peat's fibers and released to bulbs as needed.

Plant at proper depth—The rule of thumb is to plant bulbs to a depth of three times their overall height. Nevertheless, consult specific instructions for individual bulbs. Remember, if bulbs are planted too shallow, they will be in danger of freezing or having their period of dormancy interrupted by the freezing and thawing of the earth.

To plant a large formal bulb garden, remove the soil to the required depth, press bulbs into place (the flat side is the bottom), return the amended soil, then water.

For smaller spaces or a lawn, use a bulb planter or trowel to dig holes. Place the soil in a bucket, mix with equal parts sand and Canadian Peat and add a dash of bone meal, as described above. Nestle the bulbs in the mix at the recommended depth and water well.

Groom with caution—Make sure the bulbs will bloom again next year by allowing the foliage to wither. After the blossoms wilt, the stem and leaves begin to make and store food for use next spring.

Therefore, "deadhead" the bulbs, but let the leaves and stems remain until they turn yellow and shrivel. When bulbs are planted in grass, do not mow until leaves are brown. When flowers have faded, carefully loosen soil and work in a handful of 5-10-5 fertilizer around each bulb.

Divide when crowded—Most bulbs can be left in place to multiply and flourish for a number of years. When they show signs of overcrowding, divide and replant them using the directions listed above.

The waiting, they say, is the hardest part. But rest assured that after a long winter's nap the bulbs will fill the yard with color and inspire a case of spring fever.

Plants add value to communities

- Landscaping can add between seven and 14 percent to a home's value.
- Landscaping can have a recovery value of 100 to 200 percent at selling time.
- Landscaping can speed the sale of homes by five to six weeks.
- A single urban tree can provide up to $273 a year in air conditioning, pollution fighting, erosion and storm water control, and wildlife shelter benefits.

Survey shows a good sense of humor boosts career

Apparently, climbing the corporate ladder is a laughing matter, according to top executives in a new survey. More than 90 percent of respondents said they believe a good sense of humor is key for advancement.

The survey was developed by Accountemps, the world's largest temporary staffing service for advancement.

The survey was developed by Accountemps, the world's largest temporary staffing service for accounting, finance and bookkeeping. It was conducted by an independent research firm, which polled 150 executives from the nation's 1,000 largest companies.

Executives were asked, "How important is a good sense of humor in reaching senior management levels?" Their responses:

Very important	45 percent
Somewhat important	46 percent
Not very important	6 percent
Not at all important	2 percent
Not sure/don't know	1 percent
	100 percent

"A good sense of humor helps build personal rapport and a greater spirit of cooperation," said Max Messmer, chairman of Accountemps. "When the pressure mounts and deadlines loom, humor helps diffuse tension. Individuals with a healthy sense of humor tend to work well with others—a critical management skill."

Messmer does not advise taking notes during slapstick comedies, however. "A sense of humor must be appropriate for the professional setting of an office. Low key and understated humor works best. Practical jokes and wisecracks won't take you very far, and will only harm your chances for career advancement."

This survey counters the notion that the serious, stoic worker is more likely to get promoted," said Fred Getz, Accountemps president for the Chicago area. "When people are confident enough to laugh at situations and at themselves, they are easier to work with."

Expansion proves appeal of sign business

TINA L. SWIECH

Staff Reporter

When Jim Busch Jr. started making signs, his business was located in his apartment.

For the past four years consecutively, Busch says Sign Appeal has doubled the size of its account list. Now the sign company building at 20 E. Grand Ave. in Fox Lake has expanded as well.

The village hasn't had a new building on that side of the street in about thirty years, said Busch.

This summer Busch and his crew constructed a 30 foot by 60 foot addition to the back of the store.

Vehicle lettering, which is a big part of the Sign Appeal business used to be done outdoors, and in the winter months vehicles had to be relocated to a tiny garage in Spring Grove where Busch could work on them. Now they're done conveniently in the new addition.

Busch has also witnessed growth in his staff. He said the business was a one-man operation for four years. Now there's a full time worker and also a part-time person at the shop.

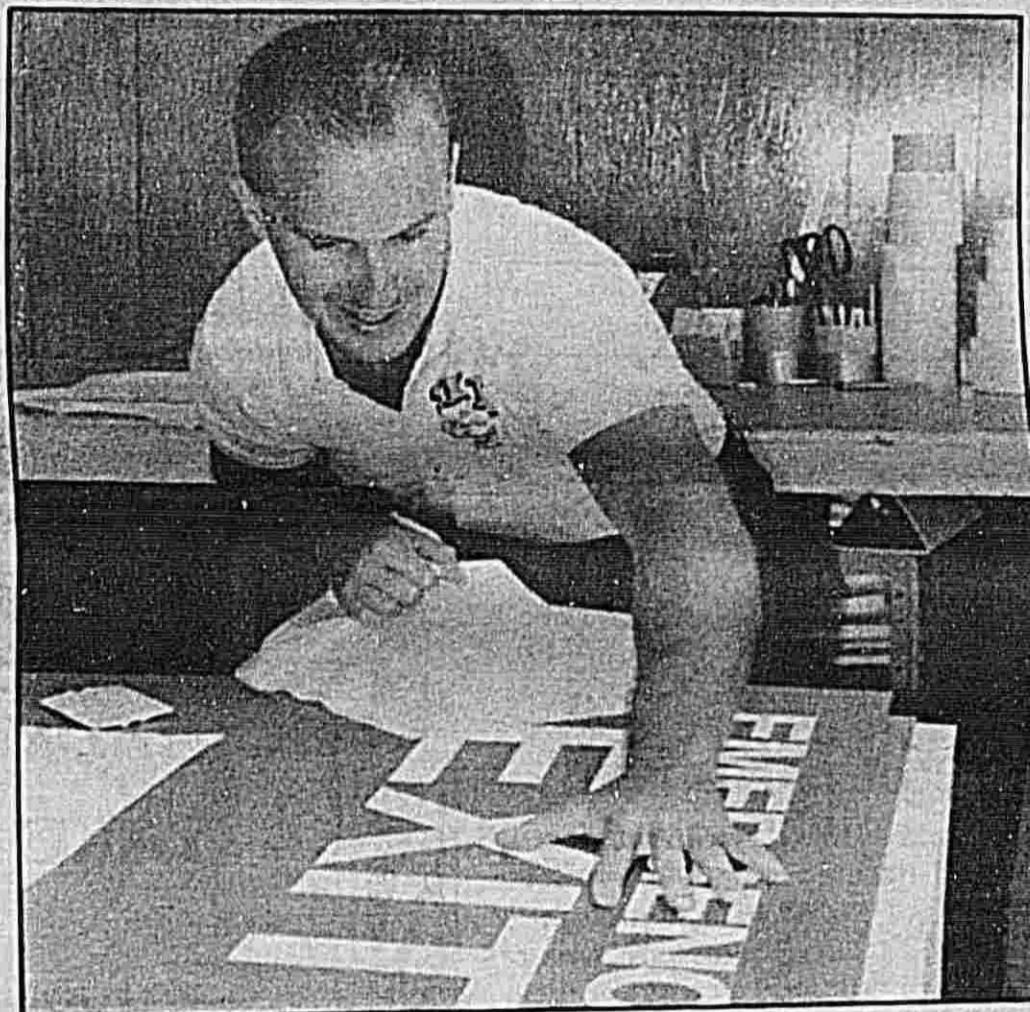

Jeff Grams is his right hand man, dealing in sales and service, while part-time worker and Grant High School student Mike Hahl helps make signs and whatever else is needed.

The sign business is no exception to the influx of technology. Busch explained what once was done by hand is accomplished now by computers. "It sure speeds up the process," he said.

The old way of making signs includes painting on a piece of wood. With this method, after

Sign Appeal owner Jim Busch Jr. peels away the top layer of a newly-made sign. "I never get bored, because I'm not doing large quantities of the same thing," said Busch. The Fox Lake businesses clientele list doubles in size of each year.—Photo by Tina Swiech about five years or so the paint starts to peel and fade. Today vinyl laminate is used in the sign making process in lieu of paint.

A type of signage which was formerly contracted out by Busch is now done right in the shop. Neon has grown in popularity with businesses all over, explained Busch. The neon signs he makes range from store window borders to restaurant decor, and more.

Professional glass-blower Don Scharlow comes into Sign Appeal when there's an order to be filled, and bends the straight sticks of glass into shapes accordingly.

After the design is complete, the signs won't light up without thousands of volts of power which comes from a transformer, explained Busch.

"We are a full-service sign shop," said Busch. "If there's a sign, we offer it." Sign Appeal lets police and fire vehicles from various villages.

And Sign Appeal gets some unusual requests, Busch said. "People want us to letter everything," he said. Besides the many, many boats and watercraft the Chain O' Lakes shop puts labels on, it has done toys, bike helmets, a surfboard for a See SIGN page C3

2 mothers add 'Sparkle' to new cleaning business

KEVIN HANRAHAN

Staff Reporter

Two single-parent mothers are using their past working experiences and housewife common knowledge to make a new cleaning business "sparkle."

Bonnie Schuman, 33, and Julie Lococo, 24, both of Vernon Hills, grabbed their dust rags and introduced "Sparkle Cleaning Service" this month.

Within the first three weeks of opening the business, they now boast more than 100 clients who have homes ranging from 10-bedroom mansions in Highland Park to two-bedroom ranches in Antioch.

"Instead of sitting on our butts and collecting food stamps, we are doing our best to make it in the world and provide for our children the best way we can," said Schuman, a cosmetologist who managed a boutique. "I just wanted to be self-sufficient. It takes a lot of determination and hard work," said Lococo, who is in her third year of law school at Northwestern University.

Schuman stands by their business logo. "When we say sparkle, we want houses to sparkle," she said.

Both said they specialize in customized cleaning for each home. Depending on the job, cleaning crews will do everything from dusting and vacuuming to windows, laundry, linens and re-organizing closets—for additional charges, of course. "I personally meet every See SPARKLE page C3 restaurant wall and some tiny toy trucks for a paving company.

Busch explained as a matter of fact, Sign Appeal lettered all of Lakeland Newspapers vending machines which can be found on virtually every corner in a number of Lake County communities. The sign company also made some of publisher's large building signs.

Besides the building expansion, Sign Appeal has taken receipt of a large bucket truck which is used to reach signs which are perched up in high places, and to set new ones.

Busy schedule at SCLC Chamber

The South Central Lake County Chamber of Commerce has a busy schedule planned for September, said Joe Connolly, president of the Chamber and Harris Bank Vernon Hills.

Activities begin with a free Community Showcase Spectacular cosponsored with the Buffalo Grove Chamber to be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 9 in Adlai Stevenson High School.

This event, for families, business and professional people will feature some 50 booths with businesses trying to reach people in the community. Food will be served by Stevenson and children will have an opportunity to see the inside of a high school.

There will be entertainment for children and adults as well as educational activities. This includes visits from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. by Buffy, the Buffalo Grove Park District mascot and by Marco, the Vernon Hills police dog. A disc jockey will be playing music throughout the day and there will be plenty of announcements of things to see.

Among the drawings offered will be one for a stay at Galena, the Midwest equivalent of Fisherman's Wharf, the French Quarter or Provincetown.

At 7:30 a.m. on Monday, Sept. 11, the SCLC Chamber will cosponsor a breakfast with Congressman Porter to be held at the Hilton Hotel on Milwaukee Ave. in Northbrook.

Then on Sept. 12, the SCLC Chamber will have its monthly luncheon with two features. One is that the informative and interesting Power Bus of ComEd will be at the luncheon site at Marriott's Lincolnshire Resort. Registration will take place at the bus whose exhibits feature many ideas to save money on electricity and heating bills.

Two speakers at the luncheon will discuss the legal and ethical responsibilities of employers toward employees with AIDS.

This will be followed on Sept. 20 with a breakfast seminar at Marriott's Lincolnshire Resort on how to put a value on your business. The idea of the seminar is to provide enough information so that a business owner will be able to come fairly close to the value with having to hire someone to do this job.

In the past month, the SCLC Chamber held its second golf outing which was a major success, according to Julie Wrath, of Daiichi Fine Chemicals, Inc., and cochair of Golf Day.

SCLC cosponsored its second seminar with the Illinois Department of Employment Security at the Deerfield Hyatt on how the agency can help business. More than 50 people attended this seminar and a similar one held a few weeks earlier in the Hilton Inn, Buffalo Grove. A spellbound audience listened to the relationships between business and Alzheimer's and related diseases at the monthly luncheon meeting. The chamber also was involved in many other projects concerning the communities it serves.

The communities include all of Vernon Township and communities partially inside of it as Bannockburn, Riverwoods, Mettawa, Lincolnshire, Buffalo Grove, Indian Creek, Long Grove and Vernon Hills. Persons interested in chamber activities or making reservations for the above events should call 295-3111.

Among the new members of the South Central Lake County Chamber are:

Custom Data Products, Wheeling, with 19 distribution centers in the U.S., specializing in custom designed forms and labels for continuous cut-sheet applications, envelopes and related products.

Jeffrey London and his Chicago law firm of Schnoff & Weaver, Inc., in his Business Group provides three main areas of service which are executive compensation, qualified pension and profit sharing plans and welfare benefit plans.

Mid year business tax-cut ideas

While you're enjoying some summer relaxation, take some time to do a little mid year tax planning for your business. Consider your options now, set your goals, and put your plan into effect. Here are some ideas which may help:

- Take a deduction of up to $17,500 for purchases of business equipment. There is a limitation - the deduction cannot exceed your taxable income.

- Hire your children in your business. If your child is under 18 years old and your business is not incorporated, you're not required to withhold FICA (social security) tax. Your child can earn up to $3,900 before any income tax is due. And here's a planning idea: Pay your child $5,900 and deposit $2,000 into an IRA account for the child, and your child will still pay no income tax. The amount you pay them must be reasonable for the work that they do.

- Set up a SEP (simplified employee pension) plan for your business, with a salary reduction option for your employees. Your employees will be able to contribute to their retirement plan by payroll deduction. You should be able to contribute to your own salary reduction SEP account 125% of the average percentage your employees contribute, up to $9,240. Best of all, these types of plans are very inexpensive to set up and maintain.

- If you have benefits such as health insurance you should consider establishing a section 125 plan. This will allow the amounts your employees pay out of their paycheck for these benefits to be deducted before calculation of state and federal income tax as well as FICA tax. This of course means that the employer matching portion of FICA tax will be reduced.

- Since it is summer time, plan your family vacation around a convention related to your business. If you drive to the location, all of the vehicle expenses to and from the location may be deductible. If you fly, generally only your ticket is deductible. With proper planning, you should be able to deduct most of the costs of lodging in transit and at the convention, as well as 50% of meals for yourself.

- If your business is a corporation, why not pick an out of town location for your annual shareholders & board of directors meeting. You of course will need to actually have meetings and should document the decision to hold the meeting within your corporate record book.

Remember, to save at year end, you must plan at midyear. Call us for help in implementing a tax-cutting plan.

client and devise a checklist," Schuman. "Everything gets moved for dusting unless requested by the client."

She added that her crews will clean cob webs on fans and make sure the corners along all baseboards are wiped clean.

"We both have lived in homes long enough, and we know what we can't stand about what other cleaning services won't do or leave unfinished. That's what we'll key on. We plan on being the best," Schuman stressed.

And they offer satisfaction guaranteed.

"We'll send the crew back and finish the house for free," Lococo said if a client finds a dusty spot.

Another characteristic that makes "Sparkle Cleaning Service" stand out from other cleaning services is that all of its workers speak English. Homeowners don't have to be bilingual in Spanish, Polish or another language in order to communicate with cleaning crews in their homes.

"More than 95 percent of the people who we've talked to want to have English-speaking people cleaning their house," Lococo pointed out. "They want somebody who speaks English."

Prices to clean homes range from $60-$65 for smaller homes to $100 to $150 for larger homes. First-time clients can try the service for $35. With the exception of vacuums, they provide all cleaning equipment and products which are environmentally friendly, Schuman said.

"Most women, who have children, work," Schuman said. "On weekends, they don't want to be cleaning their house."

Schuman and Lococo said they hope their hard work will be an inspiration to other single-parent mothers that running a business and juggling family are possible with a little dedication.

Lococo, however, said she still has high hopes of becoming a prosecutor after finishing law school.

"My life-long goal is to become an attorney, not clean houses, but I wanted to help Bonnie," Lococo said.

Schuman wants the new business to thrive, while still being able to raise her daughter.

"We picked the cleaning business so we wouldn't have to neglect our children. I don't want a latchkey child," Schuman said. "I see this as being my livelihood. I want to make it on my own."

Local NAHU chapter earns awards

The Chicago and Northeastern Illinois Assn. of Health Underwriters (CNAIHU) took more awards at their national convention than any other chapter in the association. Besides two awards that honored the entire chapter, five members of CNAIHU were presented with individual accolades.

As a group, CNAIHU won the Robert W. Osler Education Award, which is given to an individual member, state or local chapter for outstanding achievement in promoting continuing education. CNAIHU was also awarded the Pacesetter Award, which recognizes five of the most outstanding local chapters nationally.

Four members of CNAIHU captured the Distinguished Service Award, which is presented to 12 members who perform outstanding and dedicated service for the NAHU and the health insurance industry. Those winners were: Hawthorn Woods resident Stephanie Smith-Howard of Design Insurance Brokers in Mundelein; Libertyville resident Ed Zurek of Goldstein Financial Corp. in Northbrook; Spring Grove resident Scott Shalek of Principal Financial Group in Fox Lake; and Schaumburg resident Peter Justen of Just 10 Insurance Group in Roselle.

CNAIHU President and Algonquin resident Larry Brodsky of Lawrence Brodsky Agency in Palatine was honored with the Presidential Citation Award. The award was designed to strengthen and energize the NAHU's grassroots network by empowering local associations to complete at least eight of 15 objectives, like increasing membership and enhancing service programs.

Free speech

Hey Larry, If you don't like Lipservice, don't read it. Lipservice is a wonderful resource in a country with freedom of speech. Keep up the good work, Lipservice.

Move in

Mayor Lumpkins in Round Lake Heights should move to Lotus Drive for a week and make his wife clean up some of the dirt we have to clean up.

No sharing

Inasmuch as Round Lake Beach has a population exceeding the total of the other Round Lakes in the area, why shouldn't the village have its own post office and zip code? The former First State Bank on Rollins Rd. Would be a perfect location.

Sorry person

This is to the person who said they were grateful that Jerry Garcia was dead. He was talented and a truly nice person, not just a drug addict. Would you say Mickey Mantle was nothing but an addict? After all, alcohol is a drug too. I think you are a very sorry person to be thankful anyone is dead.

Cheap date?

I just got back from taking my two children, ages 3 and 5 years old, to the movies. For the outing I spent $22. My two young boys' tickets cost the same as mine. Then, you have popcorn, which is the cheapest thing to make, and a Coke which costs almost the same as a case. Why are the refreshments more than the movie?

Abuse the owner

This is in regards to Rusty, the abused Doberman puppy. The people who put the photo in the paper did a great job showing how well the animal is doing. There is no way the owner should ever get the dog back. There are so many dog lovers who would love to have that dog and show it a lot of love. This man should be subjected to the same deplorable, horrible conditions the dog was faced with. Let's hope Rusty gets a really good home.

Belated thank you

It is better late than never. On March 5, my husband was ice fishing on Bang's Lake and fell and broke his leg. Several other fishermen out there saw him, acknowledged he had broken his leg and refused to help him. My husband required emergency surgery and called me from a cellular phone. I helped him back to shore along with the help of a wonderful man. We haven't seen him this summer on Bang's Lake. Whoever that man is, we want to thank him for his help.

Open channel

I was intrigued by the statement on CB abuse. I can remember back in the days when CBs were licensed people complained about channel 14 because anybody could get on it. Now that they are unlicensed every channel is a channel 14 and you can hear everybody make noise on it.

Bike wreck

Four teenagers in a gray car stuck their arm out of a car on Fairlawn in Round Lake Park and knocked a bike rider off his bike. I just wanted to make sure he is okay. He seemed more shaken up than anything.

Calm race

This is to the "little Indians" comment in Lipservice. That is a very racist comment and it shouldn't be used. There is no evidence Indians are out of control and go around whooping and hollering. Would you have said that about any other race on this planet?

Alligator tears

I noticed Mabel Lou Webber was crying at the Antioch board meeting again. Every time there is an unpopular subject the people don't want she turns on the tear bags thinking we will forget. No, Mabel, we won't.

Work for change

This is to everyone who likes to call up and bad mouth Avon Township baseball. I sit on the board and have for years. It is easy to call up Lipservice and complain. Why don't you come out to the meetings and get something done? It is your program. If you want change you have to do it yourself. If you were there every week putting in your time, maybe your opinion would be more appreciated. There were 1,000 other kids who were not involved in the controversy.

sl Cub/Sox game. The only time we hear from you is when you want to complain.

Safe house

It is 3 a.m. on Saturday evening. My husband received a message his daughter had been arrested. We went to get her because her mother had gone off to Atlanta. When she got here, she became violent. The police came and said she had to go back home. Why would the police make a 17-year-old go back into a bad environment?

No sale

I am calling Lipservice to let people know when they call the phone company to get a new phone number, they are paying for the local calls as well as getting their phone numbers sold to telemarketers. You can complain and get your name off the list. I have six business lines and got four or five See LIPSERVICE page C6 calls a day until I told them and told them to take it off their list. It finally quieted down, I learned. I am happy to say my new home phone has no telemarketer calls coming in. It can be done.

No housing

Did all Antioch residents recently take notice when the Village board rezoned land in order to build low income housing? The land is next to an elementary and the upper grade school. This is not the type of housing we need in Antioch. Remember at the next election the village board lacks the vision that is crucial at this time in our town's history.

Happy juror

This is from Fox Lake Hills. Jury duty is not what it is cracked up to be. Some people try to get off the jury. I am glad I went through with it. It is not what you see on television. It is serious and it is difficult. I don't think people should try to dodge jury duty. It is their civic duty and some day things might be the other way around. I think everyone would want someone fair on the jury when they are on trial.

Teamwork lesson

I have read many comments about Avon baseball and am surprised only one was positive. This is an entirely volunteer organization. If they had more help, the league may be more of the way people want it. Our kids had a great year of baseball because they learned about teamwork.

Special site?

I was going down Seymour St. in downtown Grayslake. I was surprised the construction site for the new village hall goes past the sidewalk. Is this legal or is it allowed because it is a village construction site?

Puppet finances

Voters and taxpayers of Fox Lake. Thank God we have Jim Pappas as a trustee. Otherwise, Sue McNally and her puppets would have this village on the verge of bankruptcy.

Discouraged

I am very distraught with the village of Antioch with the rezoning of the land in school District 34. Why in the world would the school want that area to be multi-family? Our country look is disappearing. The attorney has defended developers in open meetings. Whose side is he on? Are the village trustees and the attorney really concerned about the best interests of the community?

Sniping back

I have a reply for the person who wrote about me in the paper. I am Sniper and I have one thing to say to you. If you have time to listen to me and somebody else fight, I think you should find something else to do. I think you are a little whiner. Get a life.

Road rash

This is to Snow White on the BMW motorcycle. I don't care if you want to ride in front of me, but you had better be a little more careful next time you do it. I almost smeared you on the road. And find a better place to carry your personal belongings than under your chin on the front of the bike.

Wash your own

This is to the Lipservice entitled "Dustbowl." The answer is no. Why would we taxpayers pay to wash your house when they don't pay to wash anyone else's? The whole town is full of dust. Get your hose out and wash your own house.

Waste of time

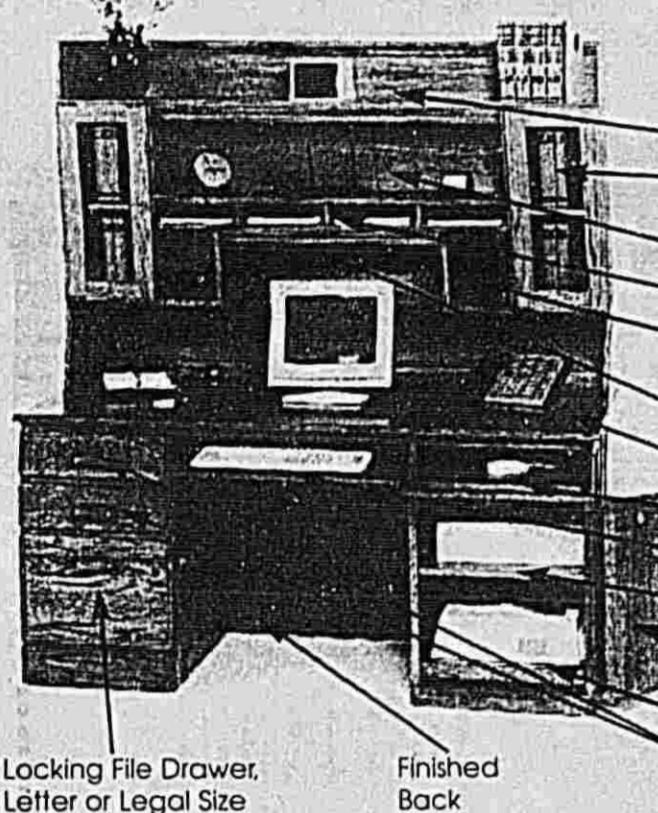

I am really surprised the people of Antioch are still wasting time on the question of train whistles. They are not something new. I believe they have been there since the beginning of this century. Anybody who complains about the whistles should not have moved there in the first place.

School vacation

This is about the Stanton School District teacher institute day. I'm glad after three months vacation they had a nice relaxing day. What I would like to know is what they learned to better help educate my children? I find it hard to believe the school board would condone this. I especially liked the comment that this day was so much better than the boring speeches they usually hear. I wonder how it would be for them to See LIPSERVICE page C7 work a regular 40 hour job all year with two weeks vacation. The schools are in bad enough shape without this kind of thing.

Edited out

I am calling regarding Lipservice. I think you only edit out things that are not favorable to your column. I called in about the nasty things about the Miss Lindenhurst contest and you chose not to print them.

Don't give up

What is wrong with the adults in this community? Are we going to let gang bangers take over the schools and neighborhoods in Round Lake? Are we crazy or just ignorant? We have to do something now. Do we want to be ruled by a bunch of half-baked children?

Bad air

Parents, wake up. Our kids are not happy with atmosphere at Round Lake High school. Are we that poor? Where is the tax money going?

Near collision

This is concerning vans and pickup trucks with toppers in public parking places. When they pull out you can get hit. They should have special parking places for those vehicles so you don't get hit while driving through a parking lot.

Recycle wrapping

I am calling in response to "Recycling bug." I agree with the problem of the person driving the recycling truck in Antioch. I am tired of all the little notes on my papers that I have now bagged, tied with a ribbon and put out. What is next? Do we have to gift wrap it?

Keep it

This is directed to the individual who talked about getting rid of Lipservice. You fail to realize Lipservice is a verbal letter to the editor. People have the right to express themselves anonymously.

Some people are not adept at writing letters and wanting it submitted with their names on it. Lipservice gives me a hand on the pulse of things going on around here. Every paper has at least one feature that people don't like. Read the features you enjoy and leave the rest alone. Don't deny yourself the opportunity to a quality newspaper because of one feature you don't like. Lakeland is an excellent paper, with good coverage. They are un-rateable and fallible human beings.

Tagger

This is in response to "Recycling bug." Since we've had this new person, I've been tagged several times a month. To get to the bus stop with my daughter we have to pass four houses. Three of those houses were tagged. We should help her relieve her pent up tension in other ways.

Tree shame

I am calling from Gurnee. It is a shame they are cutting down all those burr oak trees on Rte. 45 north of Grand Ave. that were hundreds of years old. All they did was just bulldoze them down. Those trees have been there longer than most of us and we will never see them again.

Better meal

I am a Fox Lake parent. My kids tell me the food is not good at Stanton school. For a $1.80, they serve them a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, an apple and some milk along with something else. I am a cook and I know they can do better than that.

Get active

Thank God for independent, self-reliant community activists. They are the people who fight to protect your little corner of the world. What are you going to do when they move out; help them pack? If you aren't helping a community activist now, then get involved. What goes around comes around.

Banded together

I am replying about the person who complained about the band at the Grayslake Centennial parade. I think we did pretty well since we had only been together 10 hours. We don't have uniforms and we are not a marching band. The band director was not yelling at us. He had to speak loudly because the people in the back could not hear him. I think we did pretty well.

16-hour week

Why is it the state statute says Sheriff Grinnell has to be in the office two days a month? That is exactly what he is doing. Come on, Clint. We elected you. Taxpayers are not getting their money's worth. Get with it.

Target Paris

Aren't the French real brave, attacking unarmed civilians who are protesting nuclear weapons? If they want to detonate these weapons, why don't they do it in Paris instead of the South Pacific?

Backyard court

This is to the person who had a call about the tennis courts disgrace. You are about as bad as the people who wanted the new swimming pool for the high school. Why should tax money for educating our kids go to building tennis courts for your enjoyment? If you don't like the courts, build one in your back yard. And about the quality of the high school, all the people buying new homes in Antioch must not feel the same as you do.

Coaching privileges

This is in response to "Solve problems." I think you have lost out on the purpose of being a coach. It is not to get special treatment for your kids. Why should your kids get the new equipment when the other kids have paid the same amount to be on the team? If you have to be a coach to get better equipment and a chance to play rather than based on talent, that is a pretty sad commentary of the state of sports. Be fair.

Recognition

I am thanking Mr. Kennison, the principal of the Wauconda Grade School. He works late when many of us are sleeping. Although he probably understands the rewards of his efforts and isn't looking for recognition, as a parent I would still like to say thanks.

Notable response

I'm replying to the "Recycling bug." I have had the same issues with the person who is now doing the recycling. I have had numerous notes about my recycling. One was about a rock left on top of my papers. I didn't do that to pollute, but to keep the papers from blowing all over my neighborhood. She has also said the papers are too heavy. If she spent more time doing her job than writing little notes she might be more productive. Maybe then our garbage prices would be lower.

Prep football showcases 'Mighty Monsters'

Now that the prep football season is already off and running, Lakeland Newspapers would like to extend this opportunity to pay tribute to those "Mighty Monsters" of Lake County who survived double sessions during August's intense heat.

As Lakeland Newspapers honors these "Mighty Monsters," it also wants to quickly remind athletes, parents and spectators that prep sports also includes golf, cross country, soccer, girls tennis, volleyball and field hockey, as well as other sports and activities, such as cheerleading.

For three weeks prior to opening day kickoff, football players and all other athletes braved August's intense heat in which 90-plus degree temperatures dominated the month.

Coaches and trainers took extra caution to be sure players were adequately hydrated.

In preparation for this special section, Lakeland photographers and writers visited each school in its coverage area in order to get a glimpse of those star players who are returning this year as well as those prospective underclassmen who are destined to develop into future stars on the field. (A special apology goes out to Mundelein and Stevenson fans whose team photos were not available.)

This section also includes rosters of each team,

Mighty Monsters Hit the Gridiron

Lakeland
Newspapers

so readers can come to know its Lake County athletes by name. On Page 5, Lakeland writers went out on a limb to predict which teams could see post-season action in the state playoffs. Stevenson, Lake Zurich and Carmel are early picks.

In addition, the section concludes with a list of remaining schedules to allow readers ample time to plan ahead for future games as the prep season heats up.

As the season progresses, teams will be battling each other in local rivalries and positioning themselves for playoff berths. Football is a game of winners and losers—tears of victory and defeat will be shed—but in the end, all benefit from the spirit of competition.

Lakeland Newspapers salutes those football "Mighty Monsters" as they hit the grid iron this fall.

Crystal ball sees Pats, Bears in playoffs

A first rubbing of the prep football crystal ball shows a Patriot and a Bear playing beyond the regular season in the playoffs.

The Stevenson Patriots and the Lake Zurich Bears look to be easy picks to advance to post-season play. Both advanced last year with junior-dominated squads, and both hope to advance even further with playoff-experienced players leading their respective teams.

Stevenson already seems to be on the right track as the Patriots avenged Downers Grove South in the season opener. DGS eliminated the Pats in the second round of the playoffs last year.

With Ryan Keller returning at quarterback, look for him to find receiver Tariq Sadrud-din for long airborne routes. With Kyle Brandt and Shea Newcomb returning as running backs, Stevenson will continue its tradition of power and control football.

The strength of the offense will be the linemen including Tony Giannini, Chris Blum, Eric West, Nick Hull and Eric Swan. The line averages a lean 240 pounds.

On defense, Jeff Skibitsky, a transfer from New England, is expected to wreak havoc as a linebacker.

The Patriots have qualified for the playoffs six straight years. The question this year is how far? Stevenson could very well be a state champ.

Stevenson's only challenge in the North Suburban Conference will be Libertyville, which is likewise returning 15 starters and star-studded quarterback Chris Fulbright. Juniors Dave Church, Jerjuan Lawson and Chris Celusia will be tested early. With Tim Beshe, Andy Nardo, Adam Waugh and Brian Laughlin returning, Libertyville's defense will dominate.

Third place could be a toss up between Warren, Antioch, Lake Forest and North Chicago. The winner of the Warren-Antioch game will determine who will qualify for a playoff bid this year.

Senior quarterback Don Hirschfeld will lead the Blue Devils to another winning season, and Tim Markus will be an impact on defense.

Antioch will be led by fullback John Migalla, who can bulldoze over anybody. All-Conference linebacker Jason Breen will make his final licks this year.

Mundelein boasts several exciting athletes including halfback Calvin Davis, safety Andy Kupsak and linebacker Benn Hamm.

With halfback Mike Stumpf and quarterback Eric Block returning, Lake Zurich could be the team to finally knock off Fox Valley Conference powerhouse McHenry. The Bears also have linebackers Cory Sherman and John Oliver coming back and safety John Zitko.

Like Stevenson, Lake Zurich's strength will be its offensive line with Dave Galter, Mike Gullakson, Leonard Volling and Eric Cade returning.

Look for Lake Zurich to advance to the next level.

Carmel High School could earn a playoff berth with big play-makers quarterback Nick Yeager, running back Ruben Rivera and wide receiver Mike Graham. All will have their fair share of headlines this fall.

In the Northwestern Suburban Conference, Marian Central stands to be the top dog again, but Round Lake and Grayslake could vie for that top spot.

At Round Lake, Jim Buchanan hopes to lead the Panthers offensive charge. Halfback Mario Blanquel could be a player to watch. The defense will be anchored by lettermen Mike Schuster, Don Tonyan, Guy Stockwell and Aaron Troken.

At Grayslake, Justin Wood proved he could lead the charge as fullback. Lineman Brian Kiple will be a menace on defense.

Over in Fox Lake, the Bulldogs have been 9-1 in conference the past two seasons. Joe Smith and Tony Coniglio will drive through the line as running backs. Brad Twarowski, an all-conference selection last year, could lead Grant to be conference and playoff contenders.

Wauconda is struggling with a numbers problem with a 24-player roster. One thing is for certain, everyone will get plenty of playing time. Speedsters Mike Seitz, Josh Davenport and Dave Mace could score a lot of points to help improve last year's 1-8 season.

Now that the early season jitters are out of the way, it will be interesting to see who emerges from their conference packs. But count on Stevenson and Lake Zurich to be winners.

Have a great Season!

IMPROVE YOUR DRIVE!

Play Better Golf with JACK NICKLAUS

You promote a hook by playing the ball back in your stance, both by creating an inside-out swing path and risking rolling the clubface closed with your hands.

Position the ball more forward little by little in practice until the right-to-left flight disappears or decreases to an acceptable draw.

Positioning the ball opposite or just inside your left heel will probably help.

Warren braces for Stevenson; 'Cats look to stay unbeaten

STEVE PETERSON

Staff Reporter

For 46 minutes, Libertyville had Warren's number Saturday.

The Wildcats dominated the North Suburban Conference contest, leading by as many as 18 points.

Warren put together a furious second-half rally for the second time in as many years. This one came up an outstretched hand short as Libertyville held on for a 25-19 win.

"Nothing in football surprises me anymore," Warren High Coach Reggie Hughes said.

LHS thought it had this one in the bag when Jerjuan Lawson scored from 18 yards out for a 25-7 lead.

Key penalties helped Warren move the ball on its next drive, a 63-yard march set up a 5-yard plunge by quarterback Don Hirschfeld.

Two successful onside kicks, first one recovered by Daryl Hunzinger set up a 50-yard bomb from Hirschfeld to Rich Hameister. Suddenly, the visitors were only 6 points down.

But enter Tim Beshel. He had a 53-yard fumble recovery for a touchdown earlier. He stopped Hirschfeld cold on a two-point conversion try.

Hirschfeld overthrew the intended receiver by inches as Warren was trying for its second miracle in a row over LHS.

Warren outpassed the LHS attack thanks to a second-half shotgun formation. "We have been practicing that a lot. It is the same shotgun we have used for five years," Hughes said.

The 0-2 Blue Devils may go to the formation earlier in future weeks. Mighty Stevenson (2-0, 1-0) is next in a 7:30 p.m. clash Sept. 8 in Gurnee. Aurora West visits unbeaten Libertyville in a 1 p.m. contest Sept. 9.

The win marked the successful return of QB Chris Fulbright. The senior missed the season opener because of an extended baseball season and had to watch from the sidelines in a win over Antioch. He was back doing it all against Warren - punting, long kickoffs, a 42 yard field goal and directing a 200 plus yard offense.

Beshel's, a junior linebacker, play did not go unnoticed by the LHS coaching staff.

"If you can find a better linebacker, I want to see him. He is a great leader and is a junior," LHS Coach Randy Kuceyeski said.

"It was a pitch off the option. I was worried someone would catch me from behind," Beshel said.

Beshel, prepped for the season by attending Northwestern University football camp and playing a lot of basketball.

"I don't know what happened. We had a let down," he said of the Warren rally.

One factor was penalties. LHS was charged for more than 100 yards than Warren. "And many of those were major ones," Kuceyeski said.

Offensively, the Wildcats and their fans liked the way the team opened with two long drives, one resulting in a 15-yard pass from Fulbright to Travis Gruber. When Beshel romped in from 55 yards out, it would appear Libertyville's second victory was at hand with an 18-7 halftime lead.

"We had our opportunities, but we did not take advantage of them," Hughes said.

One chance, set up by an interception by Tim Markus, ended in a missed field goal try. Another ended in Beshel making the stop on a fourth-and-two situation.

One bright spot for Warren was the play of Andy Kukla. The defensive end made his presence felt early, stopping Fulbright for no gain on the second play.

Rams' runner shows talents

If at first you don't succeed, try again on another field.

Grayslake High's defense will have a second chance to stop an option oriented football team when the Rams travel to Aurora to face Marmion in a 2 p.m. game Sept. 9.

"They run the option as well. If we did not learn anything against Cary-Grove, our defense could be in for a long afternoon," Coach Dan Dillon said.

The Rams led Cary 10-7 at halftime but the Trojans scored 21 second-half points en route to a 28-10 romp.

The Rams did have some bright spots, most notably the play of sophomore running back Neil Schroeder.

Schroeder scored the Rams TD on a 32-yard scamper.

"He can play as a varsity athlete. He plays well and blocks well. His 4.5 speed for the 40-yard dash helps. He has good skills," Dillon said.

He finished with 40 yards and Justin Wood had 50, quarterback Tom Mainord had 49 for the Rams.

"Not to take anything away from Cary-Grove, but we shot ourselves in the foot in the second half with a fumbled punt and a fumbled pitch. We could not stop their option," Dillon said.

Turning in strong efforts against the vaunted option were linebacker Shane Schanstra and Mike Karaszewski.

Stevenson's running attack destroys Antioch

KEVIN HANRAHAN

Awesome, intimidating, dominating—those are probably the best three adjectives to describe Stevenson's 67-20 massacre over Antioch.

From the opening kickoff, the Patriots were in complete control of the football game. Matt Junia took the first kick 75 yards for the first touchdown. He later floated under two Ryan Keller passes for 62-yard and 47-yard touchdown receptions.

Junia also has $5 more to put into his college fund for his kickoff return effort.

"I bet my dad 5 bucks that I would run back the first kick," Junia noted. "I just waited a little bit for the blocking to set up, and then I ran."

As for the passing receptions, Junia said, "Ryan lofted it up there for me to run underneath it. On the second one, I just tried to get behind the defenders."

Then there was the rushing attack, which accumulated 466 yards on the ground. Kyle Brandt (130 yards on 6 carries) and Shea Newcomb (three rushing TDs) were unstoppable in the first half. Brandt, who had a 23-yard TD run, and Newcomb, who had TD runs of 3, 20 and 1 yards, did the most damage by halftime when Stevenson led Antioch 47-7.

"Our line needs to be congratulated," Newcomb said. The warriors up front providing truck-sized holes included Chris Blum, Anthony Giannini, Brian Hansen, Eric Swan and Nicholas Hull.

Keller, the star quarterback, was also appreciative toward Junia, the running game and the offensive line.

"Matt Junia definitely has the hands, and the offensive is no doubt the best line in the state," said Keller, 3-for-7 and 130 yards. "When I think of Stevenson football, I think run, so that allows me to sneak in a few roll-outs."

Bears answer RL challenge, ready for Fox Valley tests

STEVE PETERSON

Staff Reporter

The snooze button may have been hit a few times, but Lake Zurich awakened to its alarm clock against Round Lake.

The Bears scored 13 second-half points to rally from a halftime deficit and post a 23-14 win over the Panthers.

Mike Stumpf scored on TD runs of 4 and 20 yards and Jeremy DiMartino scored on a 12-yard scamper to put the game away.

"It was like, 'we are Lake Zurich and they are going to lay down for us. We came out more ready in the second half,'" Stumpf said.

He finished with 174 yards in 26 carries, an almost seven-yards a carry average. He was quick to credit the blockers ahead of him - Dave Galter, Leonard Volling, Tim Sikes, Chad Johnson, Mike Malczyk and Mike Gullaksen.

"The offensive line has been together since the freshmen year," Stumpf said.

"I thought we were shocked," quarterback Eric Block said of the 14-10 first half deficit.

"We decided we were going to play. Stumpf really runs well, but he is only one of 11 players on the field," LZ Coach Wayne Kuklinski said.

The 2-0 Bears open the Fox Valley Conference schedule at Cary-Grove, also 2-0, at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 8. Round Lake continues on the road at Driscoll Sept. 9.

Other areas to shine for Lake Zurich was the defensive line. Kuklinski said the group, largely new, controlled the line.

"We just wanted to control the big play. We were not keying on Stumpf," Round Lake Coach Kevin Dempsey said.

The 1-1 Panthers received 24 yards rushing and 62 yards passing from QB Tim Buchannon. "Tim played well, under control. He is a tough kid. He is not big, but he has a lot of heart," Dempsey said.

Mario Blanquel led the Round Lake rushing attack with an 18 yard TD and 58 yards rushing. The first-quarter score and an extra point gave the Panthers a 7-6 lead.

After Chris Bocci booted a 28-yard field goal for a 10-6 Lake Zurich lead, the Panthers drove the field in the final 80 seconds before halftime. After Mario Blanquel gained enough yards for a first down on fourth down, Brett White snared a 14-yard pass from Buchannon for a TD. The score with a second left gave the visitors a 14-10 lead.

Round Lake stopped Lake Zurich on a fourth-down try in the first second-half possession. The Bears gained good field position at the Round Lake 34 after four plays.

Stumpf then scored on a 20-yard draw play and an extra point regained the LZ lead for good.

Round Lake had four possessions of three plays and out the rest of the way.

"The kids will bounce back," Dempsey assured.

Condell Classic attracts runners from all points on map

In its 19 year history, the Condell Distance Classic (CDC) sponsored by Condell Medical Center in Libertyville has grown to be an event that is attracting followers, not only from the Chicagoland area and the United States, but even from foreign lands.

This year, the CDC will be held at the Condell Day Center for Intergenerational Care, 700 Garfield Ave., Libertyville. The Condell 10K will kick off at 9 a.m. The MetLife 5K Run/Walk will begin at 8:10 a.m. and the Lakeland Newspapers One Mile is set for 8:15 a.m.

As registrations come in for the 1995 CDC set for Sunday, Sept. 17, it will be interesting to note from where this year's crop of competitors will be arriving. Last year, Emile Eynard of Beaufort, France ran the 10K. Having just run the Paris Marathon in four hours, he placed a competitive seventh in his age group in the CDC.

Hirofumi Hayama of Tokyo, Japan was in Libertyville on a business trip and decided to run the 10K. He placed eighth in his age division out of 73 runners.

A number of runners came from neighboring states such as Indiana, Delaware, Ohio, Minnesota, Massachusetts, Michigan, Louisiana and Wisconsin.

However, of the 1,417 participants enjoying the 1994 CDC, the majority were from the metropolitan area. The city of Chicago led the pack with 82 competitors. Grayslake was a close second with 79 runners. Gurnee was well-represented with 66, while Waukegan saw 39 of its residents participating. Other communities with more than 20 in the CDC were Lake Bluff, Palatine, Lake Villa and Antioch.

Of course, Condell Medical Center's immediate service area,

Libertyville, Mundelein and Vernon Hills, was very well represented with 471 individual competitors and families proving why the Condell Distance Classic continues to grow in popularity.

A series of warm-up and stretching activities will be offered prior to the 10K run from 7:30 to 8:45 a.m. adjacent to the registration tent. Physical therapists from the Department of Rehabilitation Services will lead registrants in proper exercises and stretching and later, after the 10K, they will conduct cool down exercises from 9:45 to 10:30 a.m.

Open to residents of Lake County and the entire metropolitan area, the Condell Distance Classic provides three events which offer something for everyone. The 10K race, a USATF-sanctioned and certified event, provides keen competition for serious competitors, while the MetLife 5K Run/Walk, also USATF-sanctioned and certified, offers competition for participants who are turning their interest toward a shorter run or walking competition.

The Lakeland Newspapers One Mile not only offers fun to individuals just starting into fitness, but also to many area families who regularly make it a family event, if not a family reunion in some cases.

Condell's 1995 co-sponsors are MetLife Resources™, Hollister™, Lakeland Newspapers, Vogue Printers and Centre Club, the medical center's fitness complex. CASE PAPER is a patron.

Other contributors are Breaking Bread; Centre Sports Shoppe; Edwardo's Natural Pizza; Marathon Sportswear; O'Tarpey's Rental Service; Pepsi-Cola General Bottlers, Inc.; and Sparkling Spring Water Company.

Donna Zradicka, race coordinator, said that the morning's events include the Runners' Breakfast, compliments of Condell Medical Center and friends which highlights post-race activities, CDC T-shirts to the first 1,200 registrants to pick up their race packets, and random drawing prizes throughout the awards ceremony.

There will also be free Kids Kamp activities for children, ages 5 to 10 years old, held from 9 to 10:30 a.m.

Prizes will be awarded to registered winners in the various categories.

Packet pick-up and registration in person will be held from 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, Sept. 11 to 15, and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 16 in Condell's Public Relations and Marketing Dept. located near the 303 Cleveland Ave. entrance at the back of the hospital. Race day registration will be from 7 to 8:30 a.m. at the start line. Race T-shirt availability will be determined by packet pickup.

For more information, call Condell's Dept. of Public Relations and Marketing at 362-2905, ext. 5275.

Tough loop tests near for Carmel p.m. game Sept. 8.

"Marian is just the same old Marian," Fitzgibbons said.

The Corsairs turned to their ground game in the second half against the South Gators. Ruben Rivera scored on TD runs of 34 yards twice and caught a TD pass from quarterback Nick Yeager. Yeager topped the 100 yard mark in rushing and passing.

"Ruben is just something else," Fitzgibbons said.

"We were knocking on the door two other times in the first half. We refocused our efforts to finishing the task in the second half," the coach explained.

Leading the effort in opening the holes for Rivera are: Kevin Burris, Joe Bitto and Tom Roder. Burris, a transfer from Round Lake, added his own touch on a 8-yard run which turned the second half tide.

The defense was once again led by linebacker Steve Goleblewski. The 6-0, 202 pounder has been in on 24 tackles in two Carmel wins.

"He is really coming into his own," Fitzgibbons said of the senior.

The second half belonged to the second and third stringers. With less than two minutes gone in the second half, halfback Allen Smith danced into the endzone with a 27-yard TD run.

Moments later, the defense got involved in the scoring when defensive lineman Justin Ward stripped the ball from Antioch quarterback Walter Martens and skirted 19 yards for the TD.

Second-string running backs Shayne Howard (43 yards) and Patrick Luby (61 yards) controlled the running attack and clock for the remaining quarter and a half. Luby finished off the demolishing with a 12-yard trot into the endzone.

"Our kids ran hard today," said Coach Bill Mitz. "Between last week and this week, I am really happy to get a lot of kids some playing experience."

The Sequoits returned to Antioch licking their wounds. Coach Del Pechauer did pull some positives out of the game.

"Our goal was to score three touchdowns and we did that," Pechauer said.

Martens hit receiver Andy Davis for a 5-yard reception. Fullback John Migalla broke through the Stevenson line for a 75-yard TD run, and backup quarterback Dave Gooch orchestrated a 73-yard, 7-minute drive to end the game which resulted in a 7-yard quarterback keeper for the score.

As for playoff-bound Stevenson, Keller said, "Our team is going to be going places."

Tesch combination keeps on working for Vikings

The Tesch brothers are playing for a winning football team in Round Lake again, just as they did with the Round Lake Panthers.

This time it is contributing rushing yards (Luke) and directing the offense (Adam) of the Lake County Vikings. The Vikings blasted their second straight opponent in running up a 41-6 win over Midway Jets Saturday. The win gives the Vikes a 3-2 record heading into the bye week.

"We played some of the tougher teams early in the year. We have a lot of new players and now we have a lot of confidence," Adam Tesch said.

Adam threw for 119 yards in three quarters of play. Luke scored two touchdowns on runs of 7 and 3 yards, setting the first-half tone.

"Adam talked me into playing for the Vikings," Luke said.

Adam had quarterbacked for Culver-Stockton College in Missouri, bid did not find the success he had in Round Lake. Returning home to play for the Vikings proved to be just the ticket.

"The Tesches work well together with power and speed," Vikes Coach Russ Kraly said.

"We talked about not taking this team lightly. That is eight quarters when everyone is doing their jobs from the first snap," Kraly said.

The game started with Luke Tesch scoring from a three-yard plunge. New kicker Win Wratschko added the first of his four extra points. He also booted a field goal.

Luke Tesch again got the call in the second quarter for a 7-yard TD jaunt.

Joe Kurczodyna and Frank Ruiz snared touchdown passes to round out the scoring.

MHS spikers edge Carmel

A win over a crosstown rival and some early-season revenge.

Those were the ingredients from which Mundelein High's volleyball team hopes to build this fall.

Mundelein downed Carmel 11-15, 15-10, 16-14 in a long match. With a win over Hoffman Estates, the Mustangs earned revenge for a season-opening loss.

Mundelein downed Resurrection 15-11, 9-15, 15-11 in the consolation semifinals and then in a rare two-setter, beat Hoffman Estates 16-15-9, 15-12.

"We are starting to come together. Consistency is our biggest thing to work on," MHS Coach Dan Szymkowiak said.

Establishing themselves as key front-row players have been Sue Logan, a middle hitter, Jenny Kopstein, an outside hitter and Jessica Brodzik, a middle hitter. Brodzik is a junior.

The setting position has been shared during opening week.

Junior Sue Trahan, up from the sophomore team last year, senior Candace McCarthy, and senior Jenny Perez have been playing equal amounts of time.

"Candace has the most experience," Szymkowiak said.

Szymkowiak described the win over CHS as "a big one for our team because Carmel is such a good team."

Carmel fans could see some positives during this humid August afternoon.

"I liked what I see from this team. We have a lot of heart. We fought and we did not back down," Carmel Coach Jo Gerardi said.

The Carmel mentor liked the front line play of Angie DeMuth with 9 kills, Sarah Workman with 6 kills and Chris Pietranek with 5 kills.
